INQUIRY INTO GASOLINE SOON IS TO BE HELD

Charge of Mayor Croll of Windsor, Ont., That Combine Exists in Canada Will Be Investigated, Says Ottawa Official Announcement

Scope of Inquiry Is Not Yet Fixed

Canadian Press
Ottawa, Oct. 10.—An investigation will be made into Canadian gasoline companies, based on the charge of Mayor David Croll of Windsor, Ont., that a combine exists, it was announced today by F. A. McGregor, registrar under the Combines Investigation branch of the Labor Department. The scope of the inquiry has not been decided.

The Windsor mayor applied for an investigation recently, saying it was a combine, "a conspiracy of prices, a throttling competition. The application bore the signatures of several Windsor aldermen.

WILL AUDIT BOOKS

Until the scope of the inquiry has been decided, it will be impossible to say when it will open or how it will be conducted. It was believed the registrar or one of his officers would conduct it and that few, if any, public hearings would be held. For the most part, the inquiry will consist of audits of company books and examination of cost sheets.

PROMISES SURPRISES

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 10.—Prediction of "startling revelations" was made today by Mayor David Croll when he learned the Dominion Government had granted his request for an investigation into an alleged combine among gasoline companies. He demanded a "wide open inquiry."

"The loss to the citizens as a result of this combine is millions of dollars annually," said the mayor. "It is about time we stopped paying for the losses of the American oil companies."

Loot Is Taken By Vancouver Thieves

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Oct. 10.—While a companion stood guard on the street, thieves entered the office of the London Hotel, Main Street, during the temporary absence of the night clerk, J. Norton, and stole $12 from the cash register. The clerk returned just as the man was leaving the office and chased him and his companion, but was unable to overtake them.

A sneak thief stole a watch, valued at $75, an overcoat and $2 in cash from the Province Cafe on Main Street.

New Canadians Are Pledged To Empire

Speaks At Geneva For Great Britain

London, Oct. 10.—Sir John Simon, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, left for Geneva today, fresh from consultation with a full meeting of the cabinet which virtually commissioned him as a peacemaker in the highly critical disarmament situation.

It was understood the government through Sir John intends among other things to throw its weight against the present indefinite situation continuing indefinitely and to work for a solution at the earliest possible moment.

Washington, Oct. 10.—British war debt spokesmen armed themselves with documents and statistics today for their first effort to persuade the United States government of the obligations of the London government to this country should be scaled down.

FLORIDA VOTES ON LIQUOR

Tampa, Fla., Oct. 10.—Associated Press.—Florida voted today to decide whether the state would be the thirty-third to sanction repeal of the 18th amendment, the prohibition law, or the first in the United States to oppose it.

BIG RIOTS IN VIENNA

Vienna, Oct. 10.—Anti-government rioting broke out to-night in the Vienna working class district. Police lorries rushed the mobs repeatedly, dispersing the crowds, but the disorders continued. Many persons were arrested, among them a number of women. Early reports told of no casualties.

AGAIN ADMITS GERMAN FIRE

Van Der Lubbe Confesses at Berlin Trial, But Will Not Reveal Confederate

Another Defendant Remarks "Impossible" When Van Der Lubbe Says He Was Alone

By Louis F. Lochner, Associated Press Correspondent

Berlin, Oct. 10.—Marius Van Der Lubbe, young Dutch brick mason, again confessed today he set the Reichstag building on fire last winter, working without assistance.

The first day of the resumed hearing, held in the main committee room of the parliament building after sessions in the Supreme Court at Leipzig, came to a tense climax with this admission.

The presiding judge, Wilhelm Buenger, after examining three witnesses, told Van Der Lubbe to stand.

"Again, I ask you," the judge said, "to tell us loudly and unequivocally: Did you set fire to the Reichstag alone?"

The Dutchman, with his head bent low, replied almost inaudibly: "Yes."

Georg Dimitroff, another of the five defendants in an impassioned voice, broke in: "Impossible."

"Shut up," Judge Buenger retorted angrily. "I withdraw your speaking privilege."

QUESTION ABOUT CONFEDERATE

Again the presiding justice asked Van Der Lubbe solemnly: "Did you set fire to the Reichstag alone?"

"Van Der Lubbe, did anybody prepare the fire or help you prepare it?" The defendant paused a long time and then finally softly said: "That I cannot tell you."

As the Dutchman was led to his seat, Dimitroff observed, "Misused tool of others."

A typesetter, Werner Thaler, testified today at the trial he saw two persons enter a broken window in the parliament building on the night of the blaze and later he saw two lighted torches being carried about the yard apart, move through the building.

Soon after he had seen the torches, Thaler said, the building was in flames.

Count Ignatieff said: "The primary cause for the revolutions, distress, dictatorship and militarism in the world today is that human relations in other countries were on a low plane and had broken down, and foreign countries were looking to the British Empire to establish a higher standard of civilization."

HAVANA'S BATTLE OF THE NATIONAL HOTEL

An exciting drama to thousands of Cuban spectators was the siege of Havana's National Hotel, which was at its height when the above picture was taken. An arrow points to one of the towers of the hotel, where rebel officers were barricaded, just after a shell fired by government troops had struck. Damage to the hotel, owned by United States interests, was estimated at more than $300,000. The casualties included nearly 100 killed. The 500 ex-army officers were disarmed as soon as the troops had won the battle.

Halifax, Oct. 10.—Constable J. W. McCormick of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police was found dead in his bed today. There was a bullet wound in the body. His heavy service revolver was beside the body. The officer, who came here from Regina last autumn, was a native of Stewart, P.E.I.

MOVE AGAINST SAN MARTIN

By John P. McKnight, Associated Press Correspondent
Havana, Oct. 10.—The book of governmental overthrow which has snatched more than one of his predecessors out of Cuba's stormy political stage was extended today by President Ramon Grau San Martin.

And as it was held out on a wave of shifting public opinion, the veteran Nationalist leader Carlos Menditea, hustling from the wings, heard a rising clamor for his reappearance.

The militarized university youngster, Juan San Martin again ratified his support of his government, but support in other quarters appeared rapidly crumbling toward collapse.

Even General Fulgencio Batista, who directed the attack on rebellious officers barricaded the National Hotel, was reported prepared to withdraw his support for Menditea.

Powerful economic pressure and the need of recognition by the United States figure most potent, observers said, in the move forcing San Martin toward a compromise with the opposition.

While public discussion centered around the probability of San Martin's resignation, it was reported privately the student directory which has supported him throughout had split.

Conditions in the interior, meantime, remained for the most part quiet.

BRITAIN BARS TRIBAL CHIEF

Capetown, South Africa, Oct. 10.—Because the best informed circles in London side of the belief a visit at the present time would serve no useful purpose, Chief Dikeledi of the Bamangwato tribe of British Bechuana-land has been refused permission to go to England to discuss the recent fatuous trial. The chief has just been reinstated after a short banishment from his tribal area, imposed by the British authorities because a native court under his direction tried and flogged a white man for various offences.

Premier, Speaking in Winnipeg, Admits Governments Going Through Depression Cannot Be Popular, But He Looks to Canada's Future With Confidence

By C. H. Blackburn, Canadian Press Staff Writer
Winnipeg, Oct. 10.—No government could remain popular through a depression such as the world has been experiencing, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett declared yesterday. But he believed in the words of Talleyrand that a statesman should have the courage to be unpopular, and he was satisfied the conduct of the present administration would compare favorably with any administration in the world over the same period.

Mr. Bennett made three speeches yesterday, to the students of the University of Manitoba and their guests, an audience numbering some 3,000, to the guests at a luncheon of the Winnipeg Women's Conservative Association, and to a banquet tendered by the Conservative Association of Manitoba in the evening. The latter function was private.

The achievements of less than 10,000 people in a comparatively new dominion had been such as no similar population and country in the history of the world had ever accomplished, Mr. Bennett said. He asked his listeners to remember that fact and to guard against any change that would tear the achievements apart.

NEW OPPORTUNITIES

Mr. Bennett held out as reasons for thanksgiving the fact that not only Canada but the whole world seemed to be on the road to recovery, and he urged particularly on the students the need for service and ideals, declaring the opportunity for the younger generation had never been greater and probably never would be again.

He asked his listeners to remember that fact and to guard against any change that would tear the achievements apart.

Author Says Orient War Danger Growing

Japan's Chinese Eastern Railway, Manchukuo, Complaint Comes While Russia Speedily Adding To Military Strength In Eastern Siberia

Associated Press
Seattle, Oct. 10.—Upton, Close, author and lecturer, who has just returned from an extended tour of investigation in the Orient, commenting on dispatches from Tokyo telling of new differences between Japan and Russia over the Chinese Eastern Railway in Manchukuo, asserted the Soviet had "overlooked a dozen causes of war" while they "felt themselves unprepared."

"The situation is reaching its end," Mr. Close said. "I have it from Bolshevik officials in the Trans-Baikal that 'if Japan came on now we would have a fighting chance, and by next year we may be ready to invite her.'"

"Although the population is starving in the Primorsk region and the canning and lumbering industries established under the Five-year Plan are falling backward, the Soviet, by bending every effort to national defence, has placed 125,000 men of the pick of the red army, on the Manchurian border, has launched thirty small submarines from the Vladivostok navy yard, and placed some 200 airplanes with bases and supplies within bombing distance of Japan's great cities. Russia is pushing forward the double-tracking of her Transcontinental railway."

"All this is reflected in the abrupt stiffening of the attitude on the part of Russia during the last few days, and the comment made by General Araki, Minister of War, before I left Japan that 'if the Soviet does not stop irritating us, I may have to purge Siberia.'"

"At any moment the United States government and nation may have to face the situation of America's position in a Japanese-Russian conflict."

KINGSFORD-SMITH TO-DAY AT JAVA

He May Set Speed Record For England-Australia Flight

Sourabaya, Java, Oct. 10.—Well on his way on a flight from England to Australia—Wing-Commander Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith arrived here late today.

Batavia, Netherlands East Indies, Oct. 10.—Wing-Commander Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, who now seems definitely set to break C. W. A. Scott's record for an England-to-Australia flight, passed over Batavia this afternoon en route to Sourabaya, Java.

As the Australian aviator flew by he dropped a note reading—"London-to-Batavia in six days, three hours. How's that? Please telephone Semarang (in north central Java) to have two gallons of aero on the ground as I may have to land for extra oil. Also remind Sourabaya about landing lights. Thank you, Cheerio, Kingsford-Smith."

When he hopped from London, Sir Charles said he was not in quest of the mark of eight days twenty hours and forty-seven minutes.

Naval Manoeuvres Delayed By Storm

London, Oct. 10.—Naval "hostilities" between England and Scotland, arranged to start today, were postponed because of a storm which sent heavy seas pounding along the whole eastern coast, making it impossible for warships of any class to travel at their best speed.

Court Gives Leave to Sue One Arm Soldier of Fortune in China

Return of Portland Island Bought For Race Horses and Summer Home Is Sought

General F. A. Sutton, the "one-armed" soldier of fortune, who landed here a few years ago with a fortune from China, bought office buildings in Vancouver, racing stables, homes, a Gulf Island and threatened to buy the P.G.E., had his amazing career reviewed before Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald of the Supreme Court here today when Roy Munzer, counsel for Clowery Limited, sought and was granted leave to foreclose on Sutton's mortgage interest on this island.

Portland is the island in the Gulf of Georgia, half way between Victoria and Vancouver, which the general bought for the site of his race horse training and breeding farm and also as his own summer home and country estate. Before the general acquired it, plans were under way under an international syndicate for the development of the island as a millionaire's country club and summer paradise.

Mr. Munzer told the justice today that General Sutton had not paid his mortgage interest on this island for more than eighteen months and is some place where he cannot be found in the far interior of China, in parts entered by no other white man, and he resists his Chinese name and lives (Turn to Page 2, Col. 5)

ROYAL SCOT JOURNEYING

Associated Press
Chicago, Oct. 10.—The Royal Scot, England's crack train, headed for the West Coast today after having been viewed by more than 2,000,000 visitors at the Century of Progress Exposition here.

He steamed out of the fair grounds under its own power yesterday evening and departed from the Union Station today for a tour that will take it to California and the Pacific Northwest and back to Montreal, where it will be loaded in a ship for its return voyage November 22.

As Dr. Fraser and a research student both observed, the oceans are great and the land is small, and the sea is practically never visited by man. In these places the Mesozoic might be making their last stand before following their prehistoric cousins into oblivion. Here, however, the depth and intensity of the water would forbid vegetation as well as many forms of animal life, and the struggle for existence would probably be a losing one, if, indeed, it was not lost a million and more years ago.

Hon. R. L. Maitland, minister without portfolio in the Toimie cabinet, has ended the speculation as to what stand he would take in the contest with the Conservative Party out of the race. Mr. Maitland, who for years has held high offices in B.C. and Dominion Conservative associations, will not be a candidate. He will devote his time to his law business.

The power of the C.C.F. Council of Twelve, formerly the Council of Nine, is discussed by "Jay" in The Cowichan Leader. He notes that among the questions T. Guy Sheppard, could not answer without first referring to the Council of Twelve was "What is the C.C.F. prepared to do to get unemployed out of present conditions?"

"The power of the Council of Twelve," says Jay, "must be great indeed over the C.C.F. candidates. They must have the power of the recall. The C.C.F. then are under a dictatorship and the candidates are no more than 'yes men.'"

Quebec, Oct. 10.—Eleven coal companies were called for trial today on charges of forming a combine to maintain high prices for coal. Following an inquiry under the Dominion Combines Investigation Act, prosecution was undertaken by the Attorney-General of Quebec.

SEA SERPENT UNREPORTED

Many Yachtsmen and People at Beaches Keep Sharp Lookout But See Nothing

After the Yachtmaster Day week-end no further signs of the sea serpent disposing itself in nearby waters were evident. A careful watch by yachtsmen and people who were at the beaches or strolling along the waterfront, was kept.

In an interview with a representative of The Times, Prof. C. McLean Fraser, M.A., Ph.D., F.R.S.C., head of the Department of Zoology at the University of British Columbia, said: "Until someone gets a lasso around one of these things we will never be able to get much farther. It is possible that there are such things."

Dr. Fraser said he had no word of the Victoria phenomenon other than the descriptions which had appeared in the newspapers.

A possibility that this "sea serpent" was mentioned by Dr. Fraser. In this great age of reptiles millions of years ago, monsters now generally thought to be extinct, lived on the vegetation in the sea and marshes.

As Dr. Fraser and a research student both observed, the oceans are great and the land is small, and the sea is practically never visited by man. In these places the Mesozoic might be making their last stand before following their prehistoric cousins into oblivion. Here, however, the depth and intensity of the water would forbid vegetation as well as many forms of animal life, and the struggle for existence would probably be a losing one, if, indeed, it was not lost a million and more years ago.

U.S. Senate Committee Told About Issues Sold By Dillon, Read and Co.

Associated Press
Washington, Oct. 10.—Railroad stocks sold by Dillon, Read and Company to one of its investment trusts when prices were plummeting in 1929 were shown in the United States Senate investigation today to have depreciated millions in value since.

"Tracing the transactions through testimony by E. B. Tracy, president of the banking firm's investment trusts, the committee learned the portfolio of the United States and International Securities Corporation last December 31 showed a $26,562,000 shrinkage of assets."

Of these, said Committee Counsel Ferdinand Pecora, about 40 per cent, or $11,192,000, was in stocks of railroads since gone into receivership, stocks largely purchased from other Dillon, Read interests. The roads were the Rock Island and the Frisco.

Ottawa Dispatch Says That By Noon To-day Applications Throughout Canada Had Mounted to $52,000,000

$225,000,000 Asked By Dominion

Canadian Press
Ottawa, Oct. 10.—While the official total of the day's subscriptions to the $225,000,000 Dominion Refunding Loan cannot be computed until a late hour to-night, the known total of conversion subscriptions at noon was $52,000,000.

With this total already in, the belief was expressed in financial circles the full day's subscriptions might total as high as $75,000,000.

Loan headquarters here announced that the following large subscriptions received included: Imperial Oil Limited, $3,000,000; Canada and Dominion Trusts, $2,000,000; Canadian National, $500,000; Confederation Life Association, $1,000,000.

The early response to the loan was regarded here as highly satisfactory. It confirmed the feeling of confidence as to the loan's complete success, an official statement said.

RAIL LEADERS' VIEWS
From E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific, and S. J. Mungerford, acting president of the Canadian National, came words of optimism as to the response. Mr. Beatty said:

"The substantial total of early subscriptions to the loan indicates that this important undertaking is to meet the prompt and complete success which has been hoped for and expected. I should think very few bond holders will regret to exchange their maturing bonds for the new issue."

Mr. Mungerford commented as follows:

"The splendid public reception of the refunding loan in the first hours of the campaign is good news to every Canadian. It is, of course, not surprising that the public is taking advantage of this opportunity to continue their satisfactory investment, and at the same time render an important national service, but it is encouraging to know their response is so prompt as to constitute very striking demonstration of public confidence."

"One fears that in the midst of the common or garden variety of politicians he would be a lonely man pursuing a path beset by pitfalls," says the St. John paper in discussing Hugh Savage's candidature in Cowichan-Newcastle.

"Let me assure you that never was I more wholeheartedly behind any party than the C.C.F.," writes Sam Guthrie, C.C.F. candidate for Cowichan-Newcastle. "The C.C.F. aims to accomplish the very thing for which I stood as an Independent-Labor candidate at the last election." The statement was prompted by up-island reports that Mr. Guthrie was not at home in his new party.

W. S. Butterfield, secretary of Ward Seven Socialist Liberals, who assisted David Ramsay in the campaign for Norman Whitaker, Liberal candidate in Saanich, has taken over the job of managing the campaign since Mr. Ramsay dropped the duties to become a candidate in Cowichan-Newcastle. Mr. Butterfield is at the Saanich campaign headquarters, 3528 Douglas Street, phone 7711.

With the same enthusiasm he has worked to get others elected during his long association with Liberalism. Mr. Ramsay is now up-island organizing and speaking in his new battlefield.

During the next few days 60 Victoria men are giving their valuable time and interest to soliciting memberships for the Y.M.C.A. They do this for three main reasons:

- 1—Because they believe that every boy, young man and older man needs the "Y" physically. The Y.M.C.A. specializes in recreational and remedial physical culture, and offers excellent facilities and equipment, plus the services of a trained instructor at unbelievably low rates.
- 2—Because they believe that the "Y" can supply opportunities along the line of educational, cultural, esthetic and devotional groups, clubs, and activities that will help youth and age alike to develop their greatest asset—personality—in a Christian character-building atmosphere.
- 3—Because they believe that where a man has a genuine altruistic community interest, and he cannot use the privilege himself, he will be glad to support the good work by taking out a membership and passing on to some delighted recipient the actual use of the card. If you do not know such a boy or young man, one can easily be found.

Vancouver Wants Increased Taxes On Government Lands

But Council Decides Against Sending City Solicitor to Calgary to Talk With Premier Bennett

Canadian Press—Vancouver, Oct. 10.—Vancouver aldermen, to-day, by majority vote, rejected a resolution that City Solicitor J. B. Williams go to Calgary to meet Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and obtain his support for the city's request for a charter amendment permitting it to tax alienated Crown lands at their full value instead of at the leasehold value, the present basis.

For some years, the city has vainly tried to obtain this amendment, which would give it power similar to that enjoyed by all other British Columbia municipalities. At the last session, provincial authorities agreed to the proposal if the Prime Minister would consent. Premier Bennett wired to "Victoria the Dominion" that he had no objection to the amendment, but that there was no objection to taxation of the interests of lessees of such property.

Statute of men in relief camps in regard to voting in the provincial election was made clear to-day. Bonds fide residents of the province who are registered voters on an existing list may vote, taking declaration that they have that right. Transients and others in camps who are not qualified residents or otherwise, will not be allowed to vote. Residence in relief camp does not confer domiciliary voting rights. The absentee system of voting will be used for registered camp voters.

A letter written by one prospective Non-Partisan Movement candidate indicates there is some disappointment over the fact that the ticket was announced from Mr. Bowser's office instead of the scheduled nominating convention being held.

Mrs. Alice McGregor says she regrets the disappointment caused to her supporters who had requested her name go before the Non-Partisan nominating convention. "Naturally this disappointment is a bit of a let to us women," Mrs. McGregor says, but urges them not to be discouraged.

Announcement is made from C.C.F. headquarters that H. C. Allan has been chosen as C.C.F. candidate for Comox.

A statement issued by A. S. Trotter, chairman of the publicity committee for the provincial executive of the C.C.F. says: "The funds of the C.C.F. are being used to help the unemployed."

PREMIER BENNETT

What is the sense of going about talking about the terrible conditions in Canada when we know the rest of the world is as bad or worse off," he exclaimed. With respect to a dropping of trade he declared that while it is true that trade has dropped, it is not, if he would arrange to visit the world, that he would find it as bad as the conditions in Canada.

The efforts to provide relief—food, clothing, shelter and warmth for all the unemployed were described from the steps taken when the government assumed office up to the present. Mr. Bennett said this was constitutionally a provincial and municipal responsibility but had been shared by the federal government immediately it took office, as being in the nature of a national crisis. The government of Canada had given generous financial aid to the provinces.

These efforts had not been in vain, Mr. Bennett said. The integrity of the institutions of Canada had been maintained and he challenged comparison of Canada's record during the crisis with that of any other country in the world.

During the pressure of present day problems he had often become unconvinced that he belonged to any party, Mr. Bennett said, and when "snipers" directed their attacks at those who were charged with tremendous responsibilities, he wondered "what had become of their patriotism."

There were those who seemed to think Canada should borrow more money and spend more at this time. But there was a limit to a country's ability to borrow without repaying, and in the case of individuals such a policy led to bankruptcy.

Mr. Bennett said the 1932 empire trade agreements had been attacked on the grounds they had not resulted in any good for the United Kingdom commensurate with the benefits Canada had secured. Mr. Bennett referred to the thirty years during which Canada has given Great Britain a preference with the United Kingdom commensurate with the benefits Canada had secured. South Africa Raises Loan in Britain

Canadian Press—London, Oct. 10.—Underwriting was proceeding to-day of a new South African loan of £17,000,000 in 3½ per cent bonds, to be issued at 96½ per cent for the purpose of converting an equal amount of 5 per cent bonds. It is the fifth big convention loan to be put on the London market in recent weeks, coming on the heels of Canadian, Australian, United Kingdom and New Zealand loans. The South African loan will be redeemable in 1955 and 1956.

Senator Glass of Virginia Declines to Sign "Blank Agreement" of NRA

Canadian Press—New York, Oct. 10.—A Washington dispatch to The New York Herald-Tribune said to-day Senator Carter Glass, Democrat of Virginia, President Roosevelt's first choice for Secretary of the Treasury, who declined the appointment, has been disclosed to be in a position similar to that of Henry Ford with respect to the NRA.

The Senator, who voted against the National Industrial Recovery Act, is the owner of The Lynchburg News and The Lynchburg Advance, neither of which is displaying the Blue Eagle. Asked whether he wished to confirm or deny the story, he replied, according to the dispatch, that he had not "authorized any such statement."

"All right to join the NRA and put that black buzzard on the paper if you want to, but the same day I will print on the front page a signed statement saying the law is unconstitutional and that it is being brutally administered," he said. Asked whether he wished to confirm or deny the story, he replied, according to the dispatch, that he had not "authorized any such statement."

"My newspapers, seven months before the National Recovery Act was proposed went on a five-day-week basis and my wage scale is much above the requirement of the NRA."

"As I understand it, no newspaper can sign any blank agreement to let anybody run my business."

and carries on like an Asiatic warrior at the head of a great army. It was recalled that the last heard of the general was some months ago when, after the publication of his book in New York, he returned to China from here with a couple of shiploads of coffee, which he planned to sell to the Chinese, whom, he said, he was setting out to make coffin-conscious in the western sense.

General Sutton has been a famous soldier of fortune in Siberia and China. Mr. Manzer said in his statement to the court. "In his recent book he has told of his experiences and indicates that between 1922 and 1927 he was serving in a military capacity under Marshall Chang Tso Lin and that during part of that time he was chief adviser to that Chinese war lord."

Thomas Westerton, formerly of Saanich and now of Harrison Hot Springs, and the Portland Island Development Company were listed as the original vendors of the island to the general.

Now that leave to proceed against him has been granted, Mr. Manzer said he would have to work out a method of serving the general in China.

Nanaimo, Oct. 10.—Four Slavonians escaped through a window when the fire broke out Sunday evening. The origin of the outbreak is unknown. The blaze was extinguished by the local fire department. The damage is estimated at £250.

REICHSTAG TRIAL NEARS END

At the student function Mr. Bennett was introduced by R. W. Craig, A.O. honorary president of the Students' Council, after Most Rev. S. P. Mathew, chancellor of the University of Manitoba, had delivered a thanksgiving prayer and there had been brief speeches by Dr. James A. Macleod, president of the university, D. C. Coleman, chairman of the board of governors, and William Benedickson, president of the University Students' Union.

Mr. Bennett recalled his own student days in the '90s when he graduated from Dalhousie University at Halifax. He referred to the many inventions which "have annihilated distance, brought the entire world into almost instantaneous communication, and bettered the standard of living."

Mr. Bennett was introduced at the luncheon by Mrs. R. A. Soudet, president of the association, who referred to the Prime Minister's work in the interests of the country during a time of unprecedented trial.

"If at times I am tired, worn and weary by the struggle, I am strengthened by the thought that it is a great thing to serve one's country at any time," Mr. Bennett replied, but even more so at a time when there is such need for service."

Mr. Bennett at once launched into a review of conditions and happenings since the present government assumed office. "Our political opponents seem prone to forget Canada is only one of a great many struggling nations," he said. At the World Conference, he had heard the belief expressed by delegates from some of the sixty-six countries represented, that Canada was in a happier condition than any other of them. "I think we might be thankful to-day," he said, "that such an opinion exists. Things are not as we

MISSING CREW ON ATLANTIC IS HUNTED

Greek Steamship Believed to Have Foundered 600 Miles East of Carolina Coast; Schooner Upside Down Off Nova Scotia

Halifax, Oct. 10.—Fate of two score seamen, remained uncertain to-day as marine officials attempted to ascertain the toll of a tropical hurricane that whirled up the Atlantic seaboard over the week-end and blew itself out north of Newfoundland.

A message from the sea early to-day asked ships to keep a sharp lookout for twenty-one men of the Greek steamship Annuola, believed to have foundered Saturday about 600 miles east of Cape Lookout, North Carolina.

The Newfoundland schooner Telic put into Yarmouth with her flag at half-mast. Cook Walter Bullock of Sydney, N.S., had been washed from the ship's deck by a huge wave that sent the little craft on her beam ends while all hands scrambled for pumps at the height of Saturday night's gale.

Off the southwestern tip of Nova Scotia a mysterious derelict drifted bottom up in the shipping lane. Her three masts, apparently had been snapped at the deck. She was described as a twin-screw wooden auxiliary schooner which probably had carried ten men.

Belief the derelict might be the long overdue Dorin, out of the Bahamas with salt for Yarmouth, N.S., was dispelled by Captain J. T. Cruikshank of Halifax, owner of the Dorin, who said his ship was a single-masted auxiliary schooner.

Believed to have been a victim of the previous storm, Captain Cruikshank said he had given up hope for her crew of ten, including his younger brother, Nelson, just twenty-two.

The United States coastguard reported the Boston trawler Quincy, presumably a victim of the week-end blow, was being towed to Halifax for repairs.

SCHOONER AGROUND
Efforts were being made to refloat the Parrsboro schooner Dorothy, grounded at Craft's Cove, N.B., and a lumber-laden scow that was driven ashore of Parrsboro and piled up on the beach at Margaretsville, N.S.

Furious seas pounded the coast of Newfoundland Monday, causing damage and sweeping the 4,000-ton steamer Marsland off Lighthouse Point, at the entrance of St. John's Harbour, where she had been stranded.

HAIR LOSSES
Heavy crop and property losses were counted in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Newfoundland.

Nova Scotia suffered heavier losses from the week-end storm, causing damage and sweeping the 4,000-ton steamer Marsland off Lighthouse Point, at the entrance of St. John's Harbour, where she had been stranded.

METEOR SHOWER CAUSES TERROR
Associated Press—Lisbon, Oct. 10.—Panic seized thousands in Oporto and many Portuguese villages yesterday evening as a result of a prolonged meteor display.

It was the grandest shower in many years, but the superstitious, believing the stars were falling to the earth, fled into the streets screaming and invoking the mercy of Heaven.

In some villages the priests had the church bells toll and organized penitential processions in which hundreds joined, carrying lighted candles and singing hymns.

The popular fear continued throughout the several hours the phenomenon lasted.

In Lisbon itself, a fog hid the celestial display.

Father Sues University of Alberta For Derangement of Son's Mind

Edmonton, Oct. 10.—With the noted eastern medical men here to give evidence, the $200,000 action of Charles H. Powlett, Calgary, against the board of governors of the University of Alberta, opened in the Alberta Supreme Court here to-day.

Powlett demands damages, asserting his son, former student at the university, has suffered serious mental disturbances as the result of initial ceremonies at the college. It is claimed young Powlett is now in an Ontario mental institution as a result of the treatment received.

Eastern medical men who are here and who are expected to testify are Dr. C. A. Porteous, professor of psychiatry at McGill University, Montreal; Dr. W. T. Mitchell of Montreal, clinical director of the "dical" committee of mental hygiene; and Dr. G. B. Powell, professor of psychiatry at the University of Toronto.

Mr. Inoue will carry on the work formerly done by T. Kori, attaché at Ottawa, who is now vice-consul at Hongkong.

Privy Council Allows Appeal
Against Award in Kapoor
Fire Case

London, Oct. 10.—The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council here yesterday allowed an appeal to the Canadian Northern Pacific Railway Co., a subsidiary of the Canadian National Railways, against the decision of the British Columbia Supreme Court, which ruled the Kapoor Lumber Company was entitled to damages arising from a fire the lumber company alleged was due to negligence of the railway. A cross appeal failed.

The Kapoor Lumber Co. Limited was awarded $117,800 damages against the Canadian Northern Pacific Railway Company, a subsidiary of the Canadian National Railways, by the Supreme Court of British Columbia. The claim was for loss suffered August 18, 1930, when its mill at Kapoor, thirty miles north of Victoria, was destroyed by fire. The plaintiff alleged the fire originated on the railway right-of-way.

The British Columbia Court of Appeal set aside the Supreme Court's award and ordered a new trial. The railway asked and was given permission to take the case to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in an effort to get dismissal of the action without a new trial.

WHEN CUBAN TROOPS WON FIGHT WITH EX-ARMY OFFICERS

One of the most exciting scenes during the siege of Havana's National Hotel was caught by the cameraman as civilians and students, undaunted by a heavy barrage of fire from the hotel, dropped beside government troops and helped them reload their rifles in their battle on the 500 rebel officers barricaded in the hotel. In the twenty-four-hour battle, called the bloodiest in recent Cuban history, nearly 100 persons, including a U.S. citizen, were killed. The ex-army officers surrendered and were disarmed.

By Joseph E. Sharkey

Geneva, Oct. 10.—The full assembly of the World Disarmament Conference will be resumed next Monday as scheduled, after a two-day adjournment. The assembly decided yesterday, buoyed up by a statement of the German delegate, his country desired an accord.

Before the vote was taken Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, president of the assembly, warned any postponement would lend weight to reports the nations had no intention to bring forth a genuine pact. Such a postponement, he continued, would result in suspension.

Calgary, Oct. 10.—Destruction of livestock and crops in an endeavor to maintain commodity price levels was denounced as an act against God in an address by Walter Nash, New Zealand M.P., before the men's and women's Canadian Clubs of Calgary.

Mr. Nash condemned the present economic system, which permitted United States growers to plough up 20,000,000 acres of cotton, while in Japan 700,000 persons were but partly clothed and 250,000 went unclothed.

Tokio, Oct. 10.—New differences between Russia and Japan rose today to clutter the path to continued peace in the Far East.

Tentatively, said a Japanese Foreign Office spokesman, Japan will consent to permit conversations among the delegates in the meantime. Almost at once Dr. Rudolf Nadjny, chief Reich delegate, and Joseph Paul-Boncour, French Foreign Minister, got their heads together.

But charges have flared frequently in the Soviet capital that Tokyo was going farther—was, in fact, as most lately asserted, joining in a plot to seize the road.

The plan as reported in Moscow was to arrest six Soviet officials of the road and thus accomplish the ousting of Soviets from all authority in the management.

STRIKERS GO

More Than Half Pennsylvania
Miners Return, But California Workers Go Out

New York, Oct. 10.—Solution of the strike problem in western Pennsylvania coal fields was sought today at a conference between Thomas Moses, president of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, and Philip Murray, United Mine Workers' vice-president, at Pittsburgh.

More than 75,000 workers struck originally, but to-day found, perhaps, almost half of them back at work in response to the appeal of President Roosevelt they should return to the mines while their case was being arbitrated.

Military control prevailed in Sullivan County, Indiana, where disorders broke out yesterday at the co-operative bituminous mines and the Starbuck mine.

On strike for a week, employees of the Weirton Steel Company in West Virginia returned to work today.

CALIFORNIA STRIKES

Presenting a situation which Frank C. Macdonald, state labor commissioner, described as "dangersous," approximately 10,000 workers were reported on strike in California cotton and lettuce regions.

The lettuce trouble, which started with a walkout of 2,000 trimmers and packers in the Salinas district yesterday, spread to Watsonville, where a similar strike of 600 workers was called for 2 p.m. today.

In the cotton belt of the Southern San Joaquin Valley, authorities estimated more than 7,000 pickers were out.

Colwood

The monthly meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to St. John's Church will be held Wednesday afternoon in Colwood Hall at 2.30 o'clock.

Major S. H. Okell, Victoria, will address the Colwood Women's Institute on the work of the Red Cross Society October 18.

Mrs. S. McMaster and Miss Kelly will be delegates from the Colwood Women's Institute at the South Vancouver Island Institute convention in Victoria. The Colwood Burns' Club held their opening dance of the season Friday evening in Colwood Hall. The committee included Mrs. R. B. Murray, Pipe Major Wishart, J. Duncan and the lady members of the club assisted in serving refreshments. Flanders' three-piece orchestra was in attendance. The Tombo winners were: Misses Lena Gardner, Jean Cargill, Miss Jamieson, Mrs. W. Bennett, Mrs. Knowles, Mrs. H. Parker, Mrs. C. Kemp, Miss Porteous, Messrs. Campbell, E. C. Parker, Jack McDonald, George Wishart and W. Bennett.

W. E. Harper of the staff of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory left on the afternoon boat for Vancouver.

Officers also watched other districts of the Indiana coal field. Activity of the troops was centred about the Hosier mines and the Starbuck Shaft, near Shelbyburn in Northern Sullivan County. A group of pickets estimated by Sheriff Cleve Lewellyn to number 500, lined the road to the Starbuck mine yesterday. Some stones were hurled at workers' automobiles and two shots were fired.

STILL THEY COME

The Conservative party will not be without representation among the candidates who will be officially nominated to-morrow, Mr. W. C. Moresby, K.C., and Mr. Robert Cassidy, K.C., both life-long Conservatives, having announced their candidature on straight party lines. Their intervention did not arise out of any convention, since the Victoria Conservative Association is playing no part in the election, but in this their candidature is not unique in view of the fact that a considerable number of other candidates have entered the field without the formality of conventions.

The main object of these two candidates is to keep the Conservative party flag flying in this unexampled contest, without regard to the hazards which stand in the way. They realize that while there can not possibly be another Conservative government in this province for some time, their party eventually must be revived, and they intend that its tradition shall be preserved in some degree, no matter how limited in a numerical sense, and that therefore it must not entirely default to its opponents. So far they are the sole representatives of a cause which, while suffering from wholesale desertion and repudiation in a mad scramble for office, still has a great and spacious background which, in their opinion, makes it much more respectable than the hyphenated and independent elements which abandoned it in the hour of its depression, and which may find it difficult to get back again.

There are now some 212 candidates for forty-seven seats in the Legislature, representing some half-a-dozen parties. Of these parties only two have leaders, one being the Liberals, who, under the leadership of Mr. Pattullo, are contesting every seat, and the other the Talmie Unionists, who, under Hon. S. F. Talmie, so far have only ten candidates in the field. The other parties and groups have declined to indicate to the electors whom they would entrust with the formidable task of directing the operation of their multifarious policies if a majority of their candidates were elected. It is easy to envisage the mad scramble for leadership, the log-rolling and confusion which would arise if they found themselves confronted with the responsibility of forming a government in accordance with the constitutional requirements of the province—requirements, by the way, which can not be waved aside by campaign speeches and party resolutions.

The real essence of the situation is the fact that there is only one party contesting every seat, with an acknowledged leader qualified by experience to carry out its policy, and that is the Liberal party. Opposed to it is a veritable babel of groups and elements, most of which have not the slightest idea of the kind of government they would form if they were elected, and some of which have even a smaller conception of the powers under which governments in this province must operate. On one side there is positive assurance of a stable, definite administration. On the other is the certainty of unresolvable confusion. The electors will get either one or the other according to their votes.

HITLER'S "LOUTS"

It has remained for Mr. H. G. Wells to put a label on present conditions in Germany. It is "The Uprising of the Louts." Turn up your dictionary and you will find that a lout is a clownish, awkward fellow; a bumpkin.

The term lout may not be quite applicable to the type of individual who salutes the swastika and the former Austrian paper-hanger who is responsible for its substitution for the German republican flag; but the following comments of Mr. Wells on the uprising of which he speaks are not far wide of the mark:

It seems to me that what is happening in Germany is a clumsy lout's revolution against thought, sanity and books. Where it will take Germany no one knows. It is not only in Germany that the wide tolerations with which the century opened are disappearing. The clumsy lout is rampant everywhere with his idiotic symbols, making his idiotic salutes and contriving his imbecile enactments. Are we safe in England? Personally, I don't feel a bit safe. Ten years ahead, funereal parties for literary men may give place to lynchings parties. Before any time is out I may be beaten up by Sir Oswald Mosley, British Fascist leader.

About one thing I do feel safe—that in the long run books will win, and the louts will be brought to heel, and sane judgment will settle with all the braying and bawling heroics of these insurgents. We shall have Hitler weighed accurately to his last penny. We shall know the truth about Goering and Goebbels; about the foul murder of Matteotti, and the subtle issue between the administration of incapacity and sabotage in Russia—or our children will.

The mills of the books grind slowly, but they grind exceedingly small. Men may suffer and die, but human thought embodied in science and literature goes marching on.

Mr. Wells' reference to Matteotti takes us back ten years, when Mussolini was in his most militantly repressive mood. Happily for Italy, and happily for Mussolini himself, the Mussolini of 1923 is a very different person from the Mussolini of 1933. From a sword-rattler he has graduated into the class of peace leaders. Hitler, on the other hand, is a badly-bungled imitation of the Italian Premier.

A CHANGE OF POLICY

It is reported from London that the lenders of money in that city are going to change their tactics and look more closely into the prospect for further investments in the Dominions and other countries of the Commonwealth. They have apparently got tired of lending so much money to foreign nations which unblushingly default the loans in whole or in part. The new policy is to be no money to non-British countries save under the most stringent safeguards. The latest available statistics show that Great Britain, apart from private investments, has about $16,000,000,000 invested in British and foreign countries. Of this sum, $9,935,000,000 is invested in the Dominions and Colonies, and on which, of course, there has been no default. Of the $1,015,000,000 loaned to foreign countries in the last nine years, however, no less than $725,000,000 is in default. In eighteen South American republics, the sum of $5,830,000,000 is out, and with the exception of Argentina, Venezuela and one or two others of the smaller countries, they have failed to meet their obligations. It is also pointed out in a London dispatch that Germany still holds under her "standstill agreements" $275,000,000 of British money which she borrowed from British banks before the financial collapse of 1931. "Lastly," we read, "London has been 'let in' for her share in the default amounting to $310,000,000 out of a total of $380,000,000 now outstanding of European loans issued under the supervision of the League of Nations."

Canada, Australia and New Zealand have a combined population of approximately 18,500,000 and the three Dominions comprise an area of 6,598,039 square miles. In round figures, therefore, in these three Dominions, all rich in natural resources, the population is three to the square mile. Even to the layman it would seem that if British money is looking for profitable employment in British countries, it ought to be able to find it in the three we have named. Recent loans floated by Canada and New Zealand sold in London like the proverbial hot cakes, while Australia's budget presented last week showed a surplus and provided for a reduction of $30,000,000 in taxation. There is, therefore, no question about the credit of these Dominions.

MEAN AND UNFAIR

Candidates who engage halls for public meetings are entitled to present their views without interruption. Electors who attend those gatherings should be permitted to hear those views without difficulty or inconvenience. Common decency, not to speak of elementary fair play, requires that those who object to what the candidates have to say at meetings called and paid for by them should either keep still or hire their own halls and say what they have to say at their own meetings.

There is something inexpressibly mean and nasty in the attempts by persons to make capital for their own groups at meetings called and paid for by others, and heckling and other forms of interruption should be made a misdemeanor with appropriate punishment. The interruptions at the meeting held in the interest of Dr. Talmie and the candidates nominated to support him a few evenings ago constituted a public nuisance. People who are incapable of giving fair play to candidates on the public platform should not be allowed to remain in the audience.

BE CAREFUL WITH FIRE

Preventable fires in Canada every year are responsible for the destruction of much life and a great deal of valuable property. We are told by those who have made a study of the cause of many of the conflagrations which have exacted such a costly toll that in most cases it has been sheer carelessness. This week is Fire Prevention Week and, speaking for Victoria, Fire Chief Alexander Munroe and the Victoria and District Fire Insurance Agents' Association urge our citizens to resolve to take every possible precaution against needless loss. There are naturally many cases of fire in which no liability rests on the individual. Defects may appear in wiring and heating equipment over which the household has no control. But by the exercise of even ordinary care it is estimated that the size of Canada's annual ash heap could be reduced by one-half. The same applies to the annual loss of life. It is in the interests of our own people, therefore, to remember that fire is an excellent servant but a very cruel and expensive master.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

LOW FINANCE
 The Perth Expositor

In the County of Lanark there are over $3,000,000 less in the possession of our citizens than there was in 1928. And every cent of that vast sum has been an entire loss to the investors. Not only have our townspeople been caught in the net, but scores of farmers have been among the heavy losers. In one wild cat scheme alone, where there was not one chance in a million of the speculators ever getting any returns from their shares, $80,000 was lost by Perth and district citizens, and the only persons who made any money out of it were the salesmen who roped in the investors, and the doubtful company which manipulated the scheme.

RABBITS HELP
 Australian News Bulletin, Empire Press Union

The rabbit pest in New South Wales is an extremely serious one when allowed to continue unchecked, and causes the pastoralists severe losses. Owing to the low prices for skins during the past couple of years, the animals have increased rapidly in many parts, but with a recent improvement in the demand, and higher prices, numbers of the unemployed have turned to trapping with the result that those applying for government rations in country towns have been greatly reduced. The rises in the prices of tin and gold have also sent men out prospecting, and in consequence the calls on the government for rations are lessened, and a lowering of the taxation for relief purposes is to be made at an early date.

POLICE REVOLVERS
 The Lindsay Post

The instructions issued by Ottawa's chief of police to constables not to use their guns "except as an extreme measure" and The Ottawa Journal's warning to Canadian police to heed that advice are not needed here particularly as Lindsay police have not bothered with their guns on any of the occasions on which they could have been used with justification. . . . Pointing out that English police bring in their men without the support of firearms. The Journal says that Canadian police should look to them for an example, rather than across the border. This is excellent advice and all officers should be trained to follow it. But they should not be asked to try to cope unarmed with criminals who carry guns and who seem more willing to shoot than they ever were.

Loose Ends

In regard to moonlight and important matters of that sort I am attacked by an embattled romantic from the Dry Belt—and most unjustly accused—a secret sorrow is revealed—together with the tragic fate of the two horn toads.

By H. B. W.

MOONLIGHT

IT WOULD be interesting to know how you spend these October evenings. Probably at low and degrading pursuits like bridge, or listening to election speeches on the radio. I dare say not one of you, among all the thousands who read this, really know what these October nights of Indian summer are really like. You ought to investigate and survey them, as the government always promises in its manifestoes. You ought to investigate and survey these nights of Indian summer at first hand, and not merely through this column.

You ought to investigate and survey them on foot, over the hills and far away. You ought to see how white the moon is, how round and bright with its peculiar whiteness and roundness which comes only in the autumn. You ought to see it shining on the ripening wheat of George Pudgebury's great corn field, as the drying leaves rustle in the breeze and whisper in a strange, mysterious language of their own. You ought to hear how the crickets sing out there in the moonlight, that sweet, plaintive song which will end soon when the frosts get sharp. Even now there is a little glitter of frost on some of the fence posts and a nip in the air.

You ought to see the wonder of the black, thick shadows across the fields, cast by the fat, billowing oak woods, which cling desperately to the leaves but know that the fall is near at hand. And in the woods a few night birds rasp angrily at one another, a quail murmurs to its fellows and a pheasant gorges hoarsely at this annoying disturbance.

Everything is transformed in these nights of Indian summer. Everything is beautiful. All the hardness is taken out of the countryside. All the disfigurements that men have strewn across it melt away in the enveloping sweep of light and shadow. Even Mr. Pudgebury's corn barn becomes a romantic, bulking shape against the sky, the hill like a nocturne in oils, and the sweep of the Chinaman's greenhouses, a hideous blemish in daylight, seem with the moon upon them like a pool of silver in the valley.

You can imagine as you walk over these nights of Indian summer that you are a thousand miles from civilization. You can imagine you are in fairyland as the dying summer pauses for this last few hours of life, and winter hesitates to break the charm. A pair of lovers sitting on a bank and murmuring to one another like the corn, seem to complete the picture of these final days, these loveliest, mellowest days of the year. But put on your hat and grab your walking stick right away. Any day now it may be over. The magic spell will break and then you can go back to your bridge and the election.

KAMLOOPIAN

EVERY NOW and then in this depressing business one receives a sudden proof of public intelligence. But it comes from the most unexpected quarters and for the most surprising reasons. Thus I have said miserable things about Victoria off and on for years, but no one ever protested. No one rose up to rebuke me, even though many of them were said for no other reason than to produce that result. After a while I grew tired of trying to rouse Victoria into protest and told the truth about it.

But mark this—no sooner do I say something mean about dear little Kamloops than even at this distance an embattled romantic from the Dry Belt, smite me with a fearful wallop in the letters to the editor. I suppose the trouble is that visiting Kamloopiens here are not used to this column and perhaps their sense of humor has been dissipated and run thin in the humid atmosphere of the coast. As if I could mean anything unkind about dear old Kamloops—I who discovered it years before anyone on the coast had heard

Burn Kirk's Coal

1230 Broad St. Phone G 3241

If it, before the newspapers knew how to spell it, before the name of Wing and his famous tavern had ever penetrated west of Savana!

Oh, dear, yes! I know Kamloops as well as my friend who writes to the papers to blast me. Why, whenever I go to Kamloops Wing gives a banquet for me, there is even a piece in the local paper, and the only six goldfish inhabiting the Dry Belt rise up to the top of the water in their little cement tank in that garden at the east end of the town and greet the man who first gave their names to the world.

I am accused of saying there is no romance up in that country, but that is not what I said. I said there was none of the blood and thunder, the hair-pant and six-shooter romance attributed to it in Miss Ostensio's current novel. Why, bless me, I have seen the most romantic things in Kamloops. I was there the night the Conservatives nominated Dr. Talmie as their leader in such an outburst of human emotion as has never been witnessed before or since in British Columbia. That was pure drama—the shrieking, weeping, hysterical Conservative Party, the good Doctor, sitting back, mountains of romance, unmoved, the snatching of victory from utter ruin, and then the Doctor's private regrets and misgivings over a good steak at midnight among the boys, he is paying the bill. That his misgivings were sound has since been demonstrated.

There was drama, too, when Mr. Pattullo was elected leader of the Liberal Party in the same hall where Dr. Talmie had found greatness thrust upon him. But there is more romance up there in the great open spaces than in these historic moments of politics, though not of the sort which magazines readers in cellophane packages by writers like Miss Ostensio. There is a glory up in those sagebrush hills, aflame with yellow poplar at this season, and strength among the people who inhabit them that has nothing to do with the conventional, tame romance of romance. It is a fact, though, and I am forced to assert it, that there's not much to be seen on the surface. The cowboys are down-at-heel, don't look in the least like the ones you see in the movies, and there are few beautiful women; but then, there are few anywhere.

I think so much of the romance of the interior that I seldom go anywhere else. I am going up there again for a last flying visit before the snow flies. But I have been unable to discover that the people who accuse me of not appreciating the things of life, do not appreciate themselves. My observation convinces me, indeed, that not one person in ten among Kamloops' total population, or the population of any of our small towns, can ride a horse across the range. That is the trouble—I am not civilized, but Kamloops is.

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES
 October 10, 1933

 Montreal, Que., Oct. 10, Sir Wilfrid Laurier was given a very enthusiastic reception at St. Henri, Quebec, yesterday, where some 5,000 electors were present to greet him.

The Spanish Agricultural Association held its annual exhibition on Thursday and Friday at the show grounds, Saanichton. Thursday was devoted wholly to the placing and judging of exhibits.

Driver Miller, of Vancouver, who thought Kid Merryfield would be a easy mark, has now changed his mind. He has been told by a reliable source that the terms under which it was proposed to put on the bout were altogether to slim to suit him.

The possibilities of grape culture in Victoria are just beginning to be realized. A grape of good flavor and color can be grown in the open, but the better kind is obtained by bringing the vine under glass.

Vancouver, Oct. 9. Charles King, the champion walker, who tramped from Montreal to Vancouver on a wager that he could do the thing in 130 days and earn $150 on the way, disappeared from Vancouver on Saturday morning, and as suddenly as he arrived in the city.

HONESTY OF THE PRESS

To the Editor:—A big howl has been raised in the local Conservative press over the proposal by a political party that some measure of control be exercised by government over the power of a newspaper to influence public opinion by distorting news.

There are newspapers and newspapers. There is the type of paper which while definitely allied with one party, has nonetheless sufficient honesty and sufficient pride in its own principles to treat news concerning the opposition with fairness and accuracy. We are fortunate in having a newspaper of that type in The Victoria Daily Times. The Times news is not subject to a particular kind of "revision" in editorial rooms. If the news was always presented as correct and as truthfully as The Times presents it, there would be no need for control.

But we have also—and it is one of the tragedies of the age that it should be so, since a newspaper can exert so much influence on public opinion—we have also newspapers of another sort: newspapers which are controlled by wealthy interests and allow those interests to call the tune, not only of editorials, but also of what shall be printed as "news."

Conservatism is crumbling and there is only one subterfuge left to small newspapers which are subsided by Conservatism. That subterfuge is to launch a venomous attack on the characters of men who are leading the people in a desperate struggle against the rule of vested interests.

The campaign is carried on by means of flaring headlines and leaded type. The line of attack is to put fear into the people, and to that end we read black headlines crying "Communists!"

be was gone for ten hours, and next morning what do you suppose? The occupant of the house next door found him sitting on the front doorstep with the milk like any other rounder. In his dispassion he had confused the two houses, no doubt.

So at last in despair, and with tears in his eyes, my friend gave the rounder to me. He said this country environment might cure his vices, give him a more wholesome attitude towards life, free him of the temptations of the wicked city. I have taken him, but with misgivings. I have put him in the pond with his virtuous brother. I have urged him to settle down after sowing his wild oats and to enjoy a respectable middle age. Still, you never know. If you should find a dissipated-looking turtle on your doorstep with the milk some morning, just telephone me and I shall send an ambulance for him.

REMORSE

THIS SAME friend of mine, by the way, has just survived another tragedy. He had two horn toads from the California desert, a charming little creature, clothed in mediæval armor and able to catch a fly with their tongues so rapidly that you couldn't see it disappear into their cast-iron insides.

Yet even a horn toad's insides have their limitations. A few days ago my friend, having no flies, went out and caught some grasshoppers for his pets. The horn toads had a hard time getting the grasshoppers down, because their legs would get crossed sideways in their gullets. However, they disappeared slowly and all seemed well. But to-day the horn toads, with the aid of the grasshoppers' legs, were able to catch a fly with their tongues so rapidly that you couldn't see it disappear into their cast-iron insides.

Yet even a horn toad's insides have their limitations. A few days ago my friend, having no flies, went out and caught some grasshoppers for his pets. The horn toads had a hard time getting the grasshoppers down, because their legs would get crossed sideways in their gullets. However, they disappeared slowly and all seemed well. But to-day the horn toads, with the aid of the grasshoppers' legs, were able to catch a fly with their tongues so rapidly that you couldn't see it disappear into their cast-iron insides.

URGE PREMIER TO TAKE BRIDE

Bachelorhood of Hon. R. B.
Bennett Causes Joke at Winnipeg Luncheon

Canadian Press
Winnipeg, Oct. 10.—The bachelhood of Canada's Prime Minister transformed an earnest appeal for public recognition of western Canadian women into a hilarious episode at yesterday's luncheon tendered Mr. Bennett by the Winnipeg Conservative Women's Association.

At the close of Mr. Bennett's address, Mrs. C. W. Martin, speaking from her table at the opposite side of the banquet hall from the guest table, asked permission to urge on the Prime Minister that the services of western Canadian women be recognized by his "honoring" some woman of the prairie provinces. "They have been waiting and hoping," said Mrs. Martin. "If you honor one you will be honoring all."

There was brief silence then gales of laughter as Canada's most prominent bachelor arose slowly to his feet.
"I am not sure that I can quite appreciate the argument," Mr. Bennett began. "as I don't know just exactly what is meant." More laughter drowned the Prime Minister's remarks. "I can only say that 'Barkie is willing,'" Mr.
Bennett added, "but remember that I am sixty-three years old." He would take her suggestion under consideration, the Prime Minister assured Mrs.
Martin.

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

October is the harvest month for delicious vegetables of many kinds.
Homely, comfortable and substantial,
the autumn vegetables are a heartening group.

Turnips prepared in the following manner become decidedly aristocratic and can be served by the most exacting housewife.

Three cups sliced turnips, 1 lemon,
2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 cups milk, 1 egg yolk, 1 teaspoon minced parsley.

Pare and cut cubes enough turnips to make three cups. Drop into cold water to which 1 tablespoon lemon juice has been added and let stand thirty minutes. Cook in boiling salted water until almost done. Drain. Mix 1-2 tablespoons butter and shake well. Add 1 cup boiling water or chicken stock if you have it and cook slowly until tender, adding 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Let water cook away and add turnips to a sauce made by melting remaining butter, stirring in flour and when this mixture is bubbling slowly add milk and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Remove sauce from fire and stir in egg yolk slightly beaten. Just before serving add 1 teaspoon lemon juice and minced parsley.

SCALLOPED ONIONS WITH CHEESE
One pound small white onions, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cup thick white sauce, 1 cup grated cheese, 10 or 12
small tomatoes.

Boil onions until tender in salted water. Let water cook away and add butter. Stir well and cook slowly until liquid is absorbed. Arrange in a single layer in a buttered glass platter or pie dish and pour over white sauce.
Sprinkle with grated cheese and, put in hot oven until cheese is melted. Put tomatoes which have been baked separately around edge of dish before serving.

To-morrow's Menu
Breakfast—Baked pear, cereal,
cream, waffles, honey, milk, coffee.
Luncheon—Peanut butter soup,
toast, lettuce and egg, sandwiches,
apple tart, grape juice.

Dinner—scalloped onion with cheese and border of stuffed tomatoes, pie dish and pour over white sauce.
Salad of fresh fruits in lime jelly, chocolate cream roll with fudge sauce, milk, coffee.

GUESTS OF PRIME MINISTER

London, Oct. 10 (Associated Press).—
Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt to-day described as "most enjoyable" their dinner as guests of Prime Minister MacDonald at No. 10 Downing Street
last night.

The son and daughter-in-law of the President were accompanied by the Premier in Washington and their dinner with him was a pleasant
renewal of their previous meeting, they said.

Autograph Hunter Gets Only Mrs. Drax

New York, Oct. 10.—This is the story of a dark moment that came into the life of one diligent trooper in New York's vast army of celebrity-baiting autograph-hunters.

He had crashed a private party given at the Waldorf Astoria for visiting British Admiral Reginald Aylmer Ran-furly Plunkett-Erle-Erle-Drax.
Imagine, then, the glint of eager anticipation that must have been in the autograph-seeker's eye—the feeling that he must have had akin to a starving man come upon a beefsteak—when all at-twitter he approached the admiral. What a name for his autograph book—Admiral Reginald Aylmer Ran-furly Plunkett-Erle-Erle-Drax—what a name!

The admiral coldly passed him by,
ignoring the request for his signature.
But the admiral's wife, more gracious, took the autograph book. Breathlessly the autograph-hound looked over her shoulder as she put pen to paper.
Here it would be right in his book,
that four-syllable name.
But what did the admiral's wife
write? She wrote: "Mrs. Drax."

GALIANO HEARS C.C.F. CANDIDATE

Galileo, Oct. 10.—The largest political meeting ever held here took place under the auspices of the C.C.F. on Saturday.

William Sead dealt with the problems of youth and explained the effect which a planned system of economics would have upon present day problems.
Capt. William Ellis, C.C.F. nominee, gave an interesting talk on the present outlook.

Robert Skinner, president of the executive, held the audience for an hour, speaking principally on the C.C.F.
programme and explaining the financial set-up and control of Canada by the banks.

Banquets may be boring, but this one was not for Charlie Chaplin, with as headed for the altar.

SOCIAL, PERSONAL AND HOME INTERESTS

The Shining Talent

By ELEANOR EARLY

(Copyright, 1929, by NEA Service Inc.)

"You said," he interrupted, "that you couldn't endure the thought of becoming part of somebody else's life. I'm afraid, Molly, that I imposed on your generosity when I sent Rita to her life. That you must feel sometimes, as if responsibilities not of your own choosing had been thrust upon you."

Molly turned toward him furiously. "You know better than that!" she cried. "You know that I love Rita as if she were my own child. You're only saying that to hurt me, Bob Newton!"

"But if you want to study, and travel, and know things," he taunted, "a child must surely cramp your freedom."

"All right," she said, and faced him coolly. "I'm trying to save your feelings. It isn't true that I can't endure the thought of becoming part of somebody else's life. As a matter of fact, I cannot imagine a relation more sweet and satisfying."

"It's simply that I couldn't endure the thought of becoming part of your life. I know you too well. The way you're abominable selfishness. The way you were Rita down!"

"I don't care! You did. I'll say what I choose. The truth will be good for you. I wouldn't marry you, Bob, if you were the last man on earth, and I happened to be one of those women who'd take most anybody! I haven't any illusions about marriage! But, if I ever get married, I'll try hard to make a success of it. Nobody could make it go with a man like you. Rita died, trying to. Do you think I want to begin where she left off? Do you think I want your information on my shoulders? I've enough to do."

Bob filled his pipe, and tried to speak carefully. "You don't think much of me, do you?"

"No," she said dully. "I don't. I'm sick of telling lies, and pretending. 'Well, that being so...' He drew deliberately on his pipe, and when he took it from his mouth, he spoke slowly. Weighing his words.

"That being so," he said, "I understand how I feel about leaving Rita with you any longer. I can scarcely take a chance, Molly, on your prejudicing my daughter against me."

"You know I wouldn't do that, Bob. I'm not so sure. There are things about Rita as she grew older. Things that might entice an unsympathetic understanding of her father's frailties. You're a rather stern person, you know."

"Oh, Bob, I'm not. You talk as though I had some dreadful concept of duty. As if I'd tell Rita all sorts of hateful, sordid things. You know I wouldn't. And I wouldn't for all the world alternate her between you and me. To pretend, even a certain fondness for my company."

"I never pretended a fondness for your company," she interrupted angrily.

"My error," he acknowledged serenely. "As I was saying, your utility has made you tractable. But I tremble, my dear, to think of what might happen if you should hold the whip hand. If, for instance, your influence over Rita should become so powerful, that you could use it against me."

"But I wouldn't, Bob! How can you think such a thing?"

"Oh, yes you would," he insisted. "At least, Molly, I think you would. And that you must admit. It's childish, I know, but I can't help it. I'm not going to take her from you in order to hurt you, Molly. But I am going to take her."

He rose, and knocked the ashes from his pipe.

"I think," he said, "that I'd better take her pretty quickly too."

Weakly, Molly collapsed in the nearest chair. She was trembling violently. She must suppose that he was serious. Bargain. Contrive somehow, to keep Rita. It was unthinkable that Bob should crucify her this way. She would die, if he took Rita away. "I'd kill myself," she thought, "I couldn't live without her."

"I don't want to be wicked. I'm not trying to punish you because you despise me. That is your privilege, and proof of your good sense. But I cannot let a woman who despises me bring up my child. I'm not going to take her from you in order to hurt you, Molly. But I am going to take her."

Uncle Wiggily's Corn Tent

(By HOWARD R. GARIS)

Nurse Jane Puzzy walked on the tip of her toes, and held up her long tail so it would make no noise as she skidded up to Mrs. Longears, the rabbit lady, and said:

"Have you noticed how queer Uncle Wiggily has been acting to-day?"

"You mean the funny twinkle on the end of his pink nose?" asked Uncle Wiggily's wife.

"That's right," said Nurse Jane.

"And the sly way he goes about looking this way and that like a pussy cat who has had her whiskers in the cream bottle and doesn't want anyone to know it—do you mean that, Jane?"

"That's it," squeaked the muskrat lady housekeeper. "I think Uncle Wiggily is up to some trick."

"I think so myself," agreed his wife. "But what do you suppose it is, Nurse Jane?"

"We must watch him and find out," said the muskrat lady.

"Maybe he is going to get another pumpkin for a pie and roll. He was home in it as he did yesterday," suggested Mrs. Longears.

"No, Uncle Wiggily is too clever to do the same trick two days running," said Nurse Jane. "This must be a new one. After I get the dusting done I'll trail along after him and see what it is."

10-10

"Very good, Jane," said Mrs. Longears.

Meanwhile, Uncle Wiggily, watching to see that neither his wife nor Nurse Jane was in sight, just then, he hopped, skip and a jump off the front porch of his hollow stump bungalow and landed in the weeds across the street.

"So far so good!" said the rabbit gentleman to himself. "I do not believe they can trail me and I can go off into the night as a free man."

"I'll make believe I'm a boy rabbit again. I'm going to stay in a corn tent."

The day before, when Uncle Wiggily was getting a pumpkin so Nurse Jane could make him a pie, the rabbit gentleman had seen in a field some heap of corn stalks, and he had decided to make a corn tent, such as the Indians used to make.

It did not take him long to hop to the field where he had found his corn stalks. There were the piles of corn stalks just as they had been.

"I'll pick out a big one and crawl inside," said Uncle Wiggily to himself. "No one will find me. I wonder if Nurse Jane and my wife will have their own troubles trailing me. For once I'll be free!"

The corn stalks were dried and they rustled in the wind as Uncle Wiggily pushed his way through the outside ones. Inside the corn tent there was plenty of room for him to sit down. It wasn't dark for a sort of yellow light came through the corn stalks.

"I'll pretend I'm camping out," thought the rabbit gentleman. "No one knows I am here."

"But pretending you are camping out, even if you are a rabbit gentleman in a corn tent, isn't any fun when you are all alone. Uncle Wiggily began to get lonesome. He said to himself:

"I wish," he said, "twinkling his pink nose, 'that I had thought to bring along some food. Then it would be fun camping out by myself in this corn stalk place. I wonder if I can eat any of the corn off the cobs on these stalks?'"

For Uncle Wiggily could see that the stalks, piled in the shape of tents, still had on them many ears of corn. But alas for the hopes of Mr. Longears, the kernels of corn that in summer, had been soft and filled with something like milk, were now hard and yellow. Uncle Wiggily couldn't eat them. If he had been a chicken or a horse, or a pig he could have eaten the hard, yellow kernels of corn. But, being a rabbit, he couldn't.

"Dear me! What am I going to do," he said, out loud.

"Why don't you go to sleep?" inquired voice and looking around, Uncle Wiggily saw a fuzzy caterpillar

TWINS UNDERGO OPERATION

The twenty-three-year-old Hines twins Marjorie (left) and Martha are so alike that they even have operations for the same ailments at the same time. They are pictured at the Jefferson Hospital in Philadelphia recovering from a mastoid operation. They have been contracting the same illnesses at the same times—including measles, chicken pox and bronchitis—throughout their lives. Each is the same height—five feet three inches—and each weighs 105 pounds.

crawling along in the corn tent. "Go to sleep," advised the caterpillar, "and when you awaken you may have thought of something to do."

"That's a good idea," said Uncle Wiggily. "And I'm never hungry when I'm asleep. Thank you."

So the rabbit gentleman curled up inside the little tent of corn stalks. His wife and Nurse Jane had started out to trail him, but they couldn't find him. And while Uncle Wiggily slept, something strange happened. I'll tell you about it to-morrow when the story will be Uncle Wiggily's bang fire. But please don't let the bath room sprouting water on the chocolate cake or it will look like a mud pie.

Kill that COLD!

Don't Merely Coddle It with Half-Way Measures!

A cold is nothing to trifle with! May end seriously. A cold, being internal infection, calls for an internal remedy. It is direct and internal—and it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and warms the system, relieves the aches and "rippv" feeling, and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is taking chances with a cold. FUNDS SOUGHT TO AID NEEDY

New Welfare Association Out to Raise Sum of $35,000

Victoria's latest campaign for a $35,000 fund to alleviate distress was started this morning when Fred Landsberg opened his campaign headquarters at 1111 Government Street.

The need for action of this kind was stressed by Mr. Landsberg, whose intimate knowledge of conditions existing amongst the unemployed of Greater Victoria makes him an authority on the subject of welfare work. The number of persons requiring assistance was, he declared, greater than that of any time in the past. Continued unemployment which necessitates a greatly reduced standard of living had sapped their strength and resistance to sickness.

"The inadequate relief provided by municipalities must be supplemented, and in order to prevent the dire distress which otherwise will be inflicted upon so many of our unfortunate citizens a fund must be raised so that assistance may be given in a way that will best meet the requirements of each individual case. The efficient manner in which the fund will be administered by the new Friendly Help Welfare Association will insure the strictest economy, prevent wastage and duplication and enable the welfare work of the whole of Greater Victoria to be performed at a figure lower than the cost to the city alone in previous years," Mr. Landsberg declared in making an appeal for generous support. Contributions will be gladly received at campaign headquarters, 1111 Government Street.

Sunday school teachers of St. Alban's Church met Friday evening at the home of Rev. F. Weaver, who has recently been placed in charge of the parish, and Mrs. Weaver, Belmont Avenue, to discuss plans for the coming winter. Arrangements were made to hold a concert later on the date to be announced later. Following the meeting Mrs. Weaver entertained the teachers, and an enjoyable social hour was spent.

THE LATE JOSEPH SOMMER
Founder

ALBERT J. SOMMER
Managing Director

OSCAR F. SOMMER
Secretary-Treasurer

FRANK C. SOMMER
Director

Fifty years, on practically the same location is the record of the firm of Joseph Sommer & Sons Limited, which is now celebrating the passing of its founder, Joseph Sommer. The firm, which is now celebrating the passing of its founder, Joseph Sommer, was established in 1883 when the late Joseph Sommer established the enterprise. In addition to handling artists' supplies of all kinds the firm does a large trade in first class water colors, etchings, mezzos, tint, oil paintings and watercolor prints, as well as a large amount of picture framing. Over the half century it has built up an enviable reputation.

When Mr. Sommer started in business he chose for the location a site next door to that occupied to-day, at 1012 Government Street. The premises stand on ground that was at one time included within the confines of the old Hudson's Bay Port, and when the excavations for the building were being done, broken pieces of crockery were unearthed. It was proved on investigation that there had stood the masonry house, where servants of the company daily met at meal times.

In the early days of the business, hand-made furniture was manufactured and many of the public buildings were well-known to the early pioneers were furnished by the firm. But soon Mr. Sommer Sr. saw the possibilities in a concern that confined itself to the sale of pictures, and he turned his energies in that direction. The success of his efforts were proved by the extensive business that he saw established before death claimed him in 1925.

The firm as it is to-day is under the guidance of the sons of Joseph Sommer, each one having been trained in the business since school days. A. J. Sommer holds the position of managing director, O. F. Sommer that of secretary-treasurer and F. C. Sommer is director.

Under their management the business has recorded even greater expansion in the picture-framing department. A policy of inexpensive quality has been adopted. The patron is given the opportunity of selecting from a wide variety of different types of frames, all of original mold, many of imported woods especially suited to the work. Among the pictures there is a fine selection. In 1928 an art gallery was constructed, and here are held periodical exhibitions of imported pictures by well-known artists from the Continent, as well as works by local artists, to which the public is cordially invited.

Joseph Sommer and Sons hold the distinction of being the oldest Canadian account on the books of Winsor and Newton, English wholesalers in artists' supplies. For many years Sommers have specialized in quality in this line. They were one of the first appointed as distributors for Eastman Kodak equipment and supplies. In the days when photography was a far more complex matter than it is to-day, in this connection they were the first in the city to install a developing tank and a modern finishing room. A. Chadwick, an employee of the firm, has been with them for a period of forty-three years.

Miss Gyneth Silver Tells How Cuticura Healed Salt Rheum.

"Salt rheum broke out in the form of a rash behind my ears and around my nose. It itched and burned causing me to scratch. Later it formed little, sore eruptions that scaled over, and water came from them. It disfigured my face for a time. "I tried other remedies but they did not do any good. I had the trouble about two weeks when I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in about a month I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Gyneth Silver, R. R. 1, Berwick, Nova Scotia.

LAKE DIVERSION CASE IS CLOSED

Canadian Press

Washington, Oct. 10.—The United States Supreme Court has denied a request from Illinois for a re-hearing of the court's last decision in the lengthy litigation over the Chicago sanitary district.

The state had sought a review of the decision, handed down last season, in which the court decided Illinois must provide funds to complete the sewage disposal plants and otherwise comply with an earlier decision in the Lake Michigan diversion case.

The court edict is favorable to the position Canada has taken on the question. Dominion authorities complained against the heavy diversion of water from the Great Lakes for Chicago's sewage purposes. The diversion was held to be against the interests of lakewise navigation.

THINKS RELIEF IS PERMANENT

John Dean Finds Growing Conviction on Question of Indigency

Returns From Tour of U.S. and England; Visited Economic Conference

"It is beginning to be generally recognized that our desires have run away with our ability to pay for them and to bring down our wants to our means is the great desideratum," declared John Dean of Esquimalt, who has returned from an extensive tour of the United States and England occupying more than a year.

Mr. Dean, who is a keen student of municipal affairs, attended the International City Managers' Convention at Chicago during his travels. He is the only Canadian non-professional associate member of the organization.

One of the highlights of this meeting was the dawn of the firm conviction that indigent relief is a thing which cannot be eliminated, Mr. Dean declared. There are several reasons for this, the main ones being, however, that longevity is increasing, there is a growing disposition among employers to reject employees over forty-five and fifty years of age and, in the United States especially, the maximum percentage of aged has been practically reached, hastened undoubtedly by the excess of adult immigration.

U.S. RECOVERY PLAN
In reference to the U.S. recovery plan, Mr. Dean said there was a majority of magnanimous desire to help the President in his efforts for betterment. His insistence on a reduction in the hours of labor was logically sound, Mr. Dean declared but there was some doubt about the wisdom of increased wages when the fortunate employed were apt to look through a magnifying glass at their wants while the needs of the unfortunate unemployed were viewed—by microscopic proportions. The economic aspect of the whole matter needed very careful study.

In England Mr. Dean attended three out of the four meetings of the Economic and Monetary Conference. Like many others, he was disappointed that more was not accomplished, but did not consider it a wasted effort. All demanding of one another's difficulties and the fact was brought out that the "dawn of international interdependence is struggling desperately with the darkness of ignorance and selfishness," he said.

Mr. Dean visited the Century of Progress Exhibition in Chicago and spent an interesting time there. His visit to the United States included California, Texas, Florida and New York, and he also was in Mexico for a time.

LIFE INSURANCE— an Impregnable Wall

THE world has witnessed some sad economic experiences in recent years. Financial safeguards which were thought strong and trustworthy have proven weak and flimsy.

You owe it to your dependents to build a substantial reserve against adversity; to protect them against future financial hazard. Millions of people live serenely behind the security that life insurance offers, that impregnable wall of defence against economic disaster.

You can create, at age 30, a ten thousand dollar estate, under our Guaranteed Maximum Protection Policy, for $158.50 yearly. In lieu of a lump sum payment, the proceeds will be paid in regular monthly instalments, if desired.

What Is Your Pet Excuse?—Did You Inherit Your Temper and Your Gambling Proclivities From Your Wild Uncle Joe?—Is Your Nagging Nerves? Do You Blame Your Untidy House on Your Children and Your Rudeness on Pressure of Business?

WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE ALIBI?

All of us have our pet excuses by which we seek to camouflage our faults and weaknesses to the world and to justify our shortcomings to our own souls.

Perhaps the most overworked alibi in the world is hereditry. You rarely meet any one who will acknowledge his faults are his own. Oh, dear, no. They are always poor grandfather's or grandmother's. Apparently the chief advantage in having ancestors is to have some one to whom you can pass the buck.

Anyway, did you ever know of a drunkard who confessed that the reason that he drank was because he drank was because he liked the taste of liquor or because of the kick he got out of it? Never. He tells you between maudlin sobs that he is the victim of heredity and that drink is in his blood.

Did you ever know a gambler who was one from choice and because he was too weak to resist the lure of the green cloth? No, indeed. It is always because he is one of the gamblers Thomases or Joneses or Smiths.

Did you ever know of a virago of a woman who was ashamed of giving away to her temper? Far from it. On the contrary, she is rather proud of taking after grandmamma, who was so high strung that she kept everybody about her paralyzed with fear. Did you ever know of a woman who kept a house-keeper who blamed herself for her laziness and inefficiency? Not on your life. She merely remarks that it does not run in her family to be good cooks and goes along wallowing in filth and poisoning her husband and children.

Another alibi that is called upon to do yeoman service is temperament. You never hear a man confess that he is shiftless and trifling and no account and that he would rather bum his way through life than work his passage. No, indeed. The reason he never sticks to a job is because he is so temperamental that he just simply cannot bring himself to do ordinary, commonplace things, such as keeping books or selling goods or making bricks.

Did you ever know an irritable, nagging, petty tyrant of a woman who ever admitted her faults and tried to reform? Mercy, no! Her alibi is, "I was born so."

It is her poor nerves that make her fly into tantrums every time she crossed in any way and say things that stab like a knife. It is her poor nerves that make her have hysterics, until she gets a new car or a new dress or a new fur coat. It is her poor nerves that make her rule her family with a rod of iron so that they dare not do anything that displeases her for fear of bringing on one of her spells. Heaven only knows what mean, selfish

The ever-present alibi that the man who, in a failure in life offers for his lack of success is that he never had a chance. He was not born a millionaire. He could not go to college. He never had any pull. He had lived all of his life where there was no opportunity. He has had to help others. And so he has sat all of his life on the do-nothing stool, with folded hands, without ever making an effort to achieve anything.

It is a grand excuse for lack of energy and initiative and general shirking, but it is not very convincing in a country where nine successful men out of ten were born and are self-educated and have made their own chances and have hammered at the door of opportunity until they broke through it.

Men's favorite alibi is business, which is a blanket excuse that covers everything they want to do and desire to leave undone. Does a man want to stay downtown on an evening and play poker with the boys? "Miss Smith, telephone my wife I am detained on important business." Does he want to take a trip? Business calls him away from home.

Does he give up reading everything except the sporting news in the paper? Too busy to read good books. Does he prefer only the shows at the theatre that exploit feminine pulchritude? Alas, he must rest his brain, the pained business man.

Does he neglect his wife? Does he let his children grow up perfect strangers to him? It is because he is absorbed in his business. Is his grumpy and grouchy around the house and as pleasant to live with as a sore-headed bear would be? Business again. As long as a man can plead business he feels it is a perfect justification for breaking his wife's heart, being disagreeable at home and not having ever a speaking acquaintance with his children.

The woman's perfect alibi is her children. With that she gets away with everything from not powdering her nose to murder. Coming and going is the most double-action excuse that has ever been invented.

The young wife gets sloppy and fat and does not comb her hair or doll herself up, because she has to take care of the baby. The untidy woman's house is like a pigpen, because you cannot keep things neat if you have children.

Wife leaves husband to toil in the city in the summer while she goes to a cool place for the health of the children. The family have to move to a more fashionable neighborhood because the children have to have some advantages, and mother has to run around to parties, not because she wants to do herself, but because she has to make friends for the children.

And so on, ad lib. A great thing is the alibi. What's yours?

Men Who Found America

THE NORSEMEN

The first white person to reach North America were Norwegians. Or that there seems to be no reasonable doubt. They came about the year 1000, possibly as late as 1003, and reached a point along the eastern coast of North America.

Back in the nineteenth century men from the region of Norway, Sweden and Denmark were making themselves famous by their travels over sea. They came to be known as "Norsemen" or "Vikings".

Between the years 874 and 980, parties of Norse, Scotch and Irish folk discovered and settled the interesting islands of Vinland.

They located land where grape vines grew in abundance. Some took their wives with them; and homes, were built out of a sort of bark which they found in Vinland. They lived there about two years, according to the record. Then they went back to Vinland, partly because of quarrels which had arisen between them and the dark-skinned natives.

About the year 1885 several boatloads of men and women from Iceland set out for Greenland, under the leadership of Eric the Red who discovered the great island.

Son of Eric the Red was a young man known as Leif the Lucky. Leif made a voyage to Norway and talked with the king. Later he sailed westward.

Hope bay, Rhode Island.

Neither Greenland nor Iceland is a land of free-growing grapes; and whatever the exact spot reached by the Norsemen, it must have been along the more favored shore of North America.

(For History section of your scrap-book).

We know about Leif's discovery of Vinland from old records saved in Greenland and Iceland. At first the story was told by word of mouth; from father to son; but it was written down not long after the year 1100.

TO RELIEVE DISTRESS

of Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt, in addition to those of the city, will serve the whole of greater Victoria.

In order to help the needy, a relief fund has been organized to relieve distress. A campaign for $35,000 will open on Tuesday and continue until the end of the month. Volunteers to assist in the campaign have been asked to canvass for contributions as urgently needed. Headquarters will be established at 1111 Government Street, on Tuesday morning, and will remain open daily from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

As the success of the campaign depends upon the degree of effort put forth it is sincerely hoped that the appeal for help will receive a full and prompt response. Volunteers are requested to communicate with the campaign manager at the campaign headquarters, 1111 Government Street, or at my office, 1006 Broad Street, telephone Empire 7441.

SAANICH WOMEN'S WORKSHOP

To the Editor:—In connection with the women's movement, we are trying to organize a workshop for the women in Saanich, on a trade and barter basis. The women will be given credit slips in return for their work, and can take out their credit in whatever garments they desire. In this way they can be spared the humiliation of feeling they are accepting charity, and also they will be taught how to sew and how to make garments, by women competent to instruct them. This workshop would supply a real need. The Friendly Help supplies the need of money, but too much "getting" without "giving" ruins the morale of the people. So many people think that because they cannot work for cash they cannot give anything to the community. But there are still people who need to be nursed, children to be clothed, wood to be chopped, bread to be made. A good bread maker could teach another woman who cannot make good bread. Even though penniless, everyone has some quality he or she could contribute to the wellbeing of the community. And if we went on increasing the chain of givers, in time everyone would be giving, and no one would be left in need. This is one way in which the women could help to change Saanich. Let's begin with the workshop. Several women have told me that they do not know how to provide winter underclothes for their children, out of relief money. If 200 people gave two yards of flannel each, we could make garments for 100 children. Also we need chairs, sewing machines and a load of coal. We have had a store lent to us, No. 3528 Douglas Street, just past Saanich and Bolerias Roads, coming out from town. Part of the store is being used as the Liberal headquarters, but after the election we can have it all. Some tables have been promised, and any other donations will be most gratefully received.

EXPLANATION

To the Editor:—Would you kindly give space for the following explanation which I find necessary to make to the one hundred and more men and women who were good enough to pay me the compliment by requesting that I stand for nomination at the convention of the Non-Partisan Group? May I say how deeply I regret to appoint my supporters owing to the cancellation of the convention. The splendid support I might hope to receive in an open convention from both men and women, signifies the prejudice of the past is fast breaking down regarding women for public office. Naturally this disappointment is a bit of a jolt to us women. But just a word: "Don't be discouraged." These little setbacks must not deter us in the least. May I suggest our efforts would be much more effective if we had a get-together, now and again, thereby educating ourselves along the lines of ways and means to an end.

SEA SERPENT

To the Editor:—I have followed with interest the viewing of this monster for which you seek a name. I recall an experience in July, 1904, while sailing the forty-eight foot sloop Grenville, with a crew composed of Messrs. J. S. Gibb, manager of the Imperial Bank, the late A. G. Wray, Saanich farmer, and Tom Boulton, now a resident of Prospect Lake, the writer in charge.

While heading for Albert Head, light air, bright sunshine, and smooth water, when about half way to the head, a sea monster was observed to be backing on top of the sea. It looked asleep. The chance was tempting, and taking the helm, I announced the intention of trying to hit the beast amidships. The crew protested, as being dangerous; but an Irish skipper is not to be daunted by "tensads, snakes or sea serpents. Some of the crew went below to see what "Four Crown" would do. Sad to say when less than a cable's length from the monster, with a hissing snort it sank out of sight, to the delight of the crew. It was then noon, eight bells being struck. The skipper was able to drown his regret and savor the matchless beauty of the day.

What better name for the beast?
GRANVILLE CUPPAGE,

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

To the Editor:—As a late member of the S.P.C., I found it necessary ever since the first introduction into Victoria of the C.C.F. principles to constantly and strenuously oppose same on the platform, and in the business meetings of the party on every occasion possible.

I wish to state clearly to the public my motives were actuated, not by any personal antagonism or prejudice to any person or persons, but solely as a conscience dictates, namely, it was perfectly clear to me from its first inception that it was a reformist organization from top to bottom, and instead of being a Socialist Party, it is clearly anti-Socialist, and that anyone who cares to analyze the situation, and organization with such a rapid growth built on nothing but discontent, could not be otherwise. So, to my old friends, I would like to say, do not accuse me of every trouble that might arise in your party. It is your method of organization that is at fault. Since I left your party you have blamed me for the fact of having a makeshift candidate instead of a Socialist candidate in Esquimalt. I can only repeat Mr. Sheppard told me at our convention in Victoria a few weeks ago: "We don't care what you say, the people of Langford and Luxton say we are going to run Mr. Brown in spite of you all."

Now, Mr. Editor, if you kind permission I would like to analyze the C.C.F. programme as adopted at Regina, of fourteen planks as explained in The Commonwealth, C.C.F. organ of August 9 last, where they continually use the terms "social ownership" and "public ownership."

In spite of a superficial similarity of words, they are contradictory to the extreme. It is not the former they aim at, but the latter, "public ownership," as stated on page two of the above issue. Now what is "public ownership"? Suppose we decide to take over the B.C. Electric on that basis, what do we find? The company are employing men on the most efficient basis possible. If they find they can eliminate an employee or two they proceed to do so in the interest of efficiency. Also if they find they can cut wages for the same reason they proceed to do it. Then, after wages are paid, allowance made for depreciation, etc., the balance is divided among the shareholders, etc. In the way of rent, interest and profit, what the workers receive is the price of labor power only. Now if we turn same into a "public ownership" concern, we send in a value to value same, and arriving at a satisfactory price, when all the details are satisfactorily settled, we proceed to cancel all the outstanding stock, bonds, etc., and in place substitute for the stockholders government bonds, at a guaranteed interest. The government relieves the private company of the management and worry of running same. If business is good the government pays its employees the lowest wage possible the same as the private company did, and after allowing for depreciation, pays the interest due on the bonds. Should there be a balance over it goes in the elimination of taxation, not to the workers, but if there is a loss, the bondholders are assured of their interest under any circumstances. This is entirely different from what it would be if the industry was still under private control.

Now as capitalism is in a state of rapid decay and competition is getting keener every day, with the prospects of business constantly falling, I ask you, dear reader, is not the capitalist better off under "public ownership" than "private ownership"? And where does the worker benefit?

The Daily Herald, London, on November 20, 1925, quoting the late John Wheatly, Labor ex-Minister of Health, on "Public Ownership," says: "It could be affected without making the capitalist poorer or lowering their standard of living." Sufficient for the present.

C. LUFF.

Conacher Makes His Pro Football Debut

Toronto, Oct. 10.—The "Big Train" of football a decade ago, Lionel Conacher returned to the gridiron yesterday as a professional to astonish a Thanksgiving Day gathering of 10,000 with the power and color of his performance.

But for all his deeds of valor, Conacher's Chiefs were beaten 18 to 15 by Rochester Apaches.

It was not a one-man show by any means, but the greatest halfback who ever wore an Argonaut uniform was easily the central figure. Al Swarthout, former University of Southern California back, outkicked the "Big Train" and Swarthout also outpassed Joe Savoldi. Conacher did the ball-carrying.

Jules Ladoumègue Shows Some Speed

Paris, Oct. 10.—Jules Ladoumègue, French runner, yesterday was timed in 2 mins. 59.2 secs for the three-quarter mile run, one and seven-eighths seconds under the mark he set as an amateur, but which was never officially listed as a record.

The listed world record for the distance is 3 mins. 2.2 secs. set by Jack Lovelock, New Zealand Olympian and holder of the unofficial mile mark, in London, in the summer of 1932.

Montreal Gridders Blank McGill Squad

Montreal, Oct. 10.—Montreal's Big Four team overpowered McGill University in the annual Thanksgiving Day encounter for the senior city football championship yesterday at Molson Stadium, 13 to 0. A crowd of 3,500 saw a much improved Red team hold the powerful interprovincial twelve to a comparatively low score.

BATTLE TO RESCUE VICTIMS TRAPPED IN WRECKED TRAIN

While awed bystanders looked on, this was the grim scene near the Binghamton, N.Y., station as police and volunteer rescuers sought frantically to cut a way through the roof of a telescoped coach of the Erie Railroad's Atlantic Express to reach the dead and injured who were trapped inside when the express was rammed by an onrushing milk train. One of the unconscious victims (indicated by arrow) is seen lying across the window sill of the car.

WILL SPEAK ON ARABIA

Bertram Thomas, Lecturing Here, Knows More of Arabia Than Any Other White Man

Plans to Hunt Grizzly Bear in Rockies on Concluding His Lecture Tour

Bertram S. Thomas, O.B.E., noted explorer, lecturer and writer, who is probably more intimately acquainted with the "forbidden lands" of Arabia than any other white man, is in the city to-day and will give an illustrated lecture at the Empress Hotel this evening under the auspices of the National Council of Education. He will speak on the subject "Across the Rub Al-Khali of Southern Arabia."

The sort of work I did in Arabia is similar to that of the early pioneers of Canada," says Mr. Thomas in describing his explorations in the mysterious Arabian desert. Travel through the Great Arabian desert, however, would not have any great appeal except to the geologist and explorer, he maintains.

For centuries Arabia has been known as the "forbidden land" to Europeans. Mr. Thomas was able to accomplish his objective because of his knowledge of the customs and prejudices of the Arabians and his knowledge of the Arabic languages and beliefs. His accomplishments have won for him—geographical medals from the most outstanding societies of the world. His writings on Arabia have been widely read.

Mr. Thomas served as a magistrate in Arabia and conducted his courts in Arabia.

He acted as interpreter for His Majesty King George when Arabian potentates visited Great Britain.

At the conclusion of his lecture tour on the coast, Mr. Thomas plans to spend a holiday in the Canadian Rockies hunting grizzly bear, and hopes to get a few trophies in the way of skins to take back to London.

Educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, Mr. Thomas was in the home of his parents in the ranks in Flanders and in Mesopotamia. He became political officer in Mesopotamia after the war. He held the post of a minister in the Ministry of the Interior in Mesopotamia and Oman for five years prior to 1930. He also was assistant British representative in Trans-Jordan.

Mr. Thomas has been the Founders medal of the Royal Geographical Society, the gold medal of the Royal Geographical Society of Antwerp, and the Burton Memorial medal of the Royal Asiatic Society.

His publications include "Alarms and Excursions in Arabia," "Arabia Felix," and he has contributed to the city and county journals of the Royal Anthropological, Royal Asiatic, Central Asian and Royal Geographical Societies.

The land of Ophir, frequently mentioned in the Old Testament, Mr. Thomas believes, is located in southern Arabia, in the mountainous district bordered by the Arabian Sea.

He traveled through some of the most interesting pictures of his work in the desert and his collection of fauna and flora specimens are new to science.

JOINT SERVICE HEARD BY MANY
Rev. D. L. Jull Preaches Special Service at Thanksgiving Day Gathering

As in former years ministers of a number of city churches yesterday joined in the observance of a joint Thanksgiving service at the Metropolitan Church. A large congregation, drawn from practically every church in the city and suburbs, attended the service and heard the special sermon delivered by Rev. D. L. Jull of St. Mark's Anglican Church. Five ministers, representing a number of creeds, took part in the service.

In his sermon Mr. Jull enunciated a number of things that people of the present day had to be thankful for. In his enumeration he climaxed the list with the gift of God which would include abiding thankfulness—the gift of Jesus Christ who came to redeem the world.

People should be thankful to God for the many blessings which all enjoyed. They should be thankful that God was a God of Love. The speaker declared that there was much to be thankful for in the spirit of unity and fellowship among the different churches of the city and the different churches taken by the churches for what was right.

Among the different ministers taking part in the service were: Rev. F. Comley, rector of St. Michael's Church; Rev. C. G. Mackenzie, pastor of Centennial United Church, who offered the invocation; Rev. G. A. Reynolds of First Baptist Church, who read the scripture lesson; and Rev. E. F. Church, pastor of the Metropolitan, who offered the closing benediction. During the service a vocal duet was given by Mr. and Mrs. Tupman.

CARS CRASH AT COLWOOD
Two Machines Badly Wrecked in Head-on Collision; Passengers Escape

Cars Overtake After Minor Accident in City; Drivers Unhurt

Two persons sustained minor injuries and several others narrowly escaped in traffic accidents over the Thanksgiving week-end.

The most spectacular crash occurred at the junction of the Island Highway and the Sooke Road, directly in front of the Colwood Hotel, when cars driven by Mrs. Clara M. Robertson, Rockland Avenue, and N. McGinnis of Nanaimo, collided yesterday morning.

The cars, proceeding toward the city and Nanaimo, were driving toward Sooke when the cars met head-on at the intersection. Both machines were badly damaged.

Ralph Palmer, Nanaimo, and W. Richardson, Nanaimo, suffered cuts and bruises and were taken to the hospital but later discharged. Mrs. Robertson was badly shaken up and suffered somewhat from shock.

SHARP REBUKE FOR HECKLERS
Disturber Should Have Been "Bumped Out on Sidewalk," Pastor Tells His Audience

Scathing reference to the heckling which marked the meeting of Premier Tolmie and the Conservative-Unionist candidates at the meeting at the Chamber of Commerce on Friday was made by Dr. J. S. A. Bastin of the City Temple Sunday evening.

"Nobody but a yellow dog would place himself in the back of an audience and keep up a series of disorderly interruptions," said Dr. Davies in referring to the incident in outspoken terms.

"He should have been surrounded by a bunch of husky young men who should have bumped him out on the sidewalk as soon as he started to interrupt. If actors cannot be given an opportunity to listen to the Premier of the province giving an account of his stewardship, to whom can they listen?"

"Some of the fellows who yap most about freedom of speech and the freedom of speech seem the least inclined to give freedom of speech to others. Dr. Tolmie has been a favored son of British Columbia and a respected citizen. No Jew would have dared to kick a man body like he was down. If the heckler did not wish to listen to him with respect he should have stayed away from the meeting."

Herbert Anscomb has said the election should be kept on a high plane. How can the candid—keep it on a high plane—then the audience permit such scenes as those which marked Premier Tolmie's meeting?" said Dr. Davies.

Dr. Davies also remarked that electors were talking about the mix-up through so many candidates being in the past they had complained because they only had a choice of voting for old line candidates. This election they had the choice they sought with thirty candidates in the field, the number reflected the unrest created through present conditions.

PAY FINAL TRIBUTE
The funeral of Mrs. Lillian Valentine Campbell was held Saturday afternoon. Rev. H. P. S. Lunell conducted the service. There was a large attendance of friends and many beautiful floral tributes received. The following acted as pallbearers: T. P. Boileau, R. H. Ellis, W. T. Cook and J. M. Crookston. The remains were laid at rest at Royal Oak Burial Park.

Upheaval Is Forecast Among Among Big League Baseball Managers

At Least Six of Present Pilots
Are Said To Be Slated
to Go

Freddie Lindstrom May Succeed George Gibson at Pittsburgh

FOLLOWING the announcement that Bucky Harris had signed as manager of the Detroit Tigers in the American Baseball League, comes word that it would not be surprising if another one of those grand upheavals—come along uprooting pilots like trees in a typhoon. In fact, there seem to be at least six managerial positions in the two major leagues that may find their way into new hands before next spring. Baseball managing is a rather exacting business, thereby differing not a great deal from other enterprises. A manager has to produce results, and excuses, even if very valid ones, cannot be used to erase red ink.

Now and then a pilot may come along like Wilbert Robinson, who can continue to entice fans through the turnstiles with nothing more promising to offer than another new way of losing a ball game. Robinson in eighteen years brought only two pennants to Brooklyn. After his last one in 1926, his Dodgers spent most of their time holding up the rest of the league, their favorite slot being sixth. There was a flurry in 1934 and another in 1935 when the Dodgers might have won another pennant had they shown the good foresight to stay out of Cincinnati on their last western trip.

However, they liked Robbie in Flat-bush. His teams had such quaint ways of gumming things up and with very few exceptions the club made money. But in the main a manager must produce a winner or at least a contender, and if he does not do either his owner is rarely interested to know the reason why.

At present only about five pilots in the National League may be said to be seated fairly securely for another ride in 1934. Bill Terry, of course, could not be dynamited out of his berth. Whatever he wants to do, he can do it, and he is not likely to let himself be secreted Stenham still pinches himself each morning to make certain it is all true.

The Dodgers have decided to let Max Carey have another year, and the Chicago Cubs also feel that with more luck of a friendlier nature Charlie Grimm will do better next year. Frankie Frisch, the Flash, is only just beginning with the St. Louis Cardinals, so that even Sam Breadon, who changes managers as often as a man changes a necktie, is not likely to interfere for a time. While Judge Fuchs, in a moment of great mental exhilaration, recently signed Bill McKenney to lead the Boston Braves for five more years.

The Judge, envisioning a pennant this year by the simple expedient of bowling over the Giants in his straight bat, did give more. He restored salary cuts to several of his outstanding players, and otherwise made quite a "do do" about the Braves' pennant sport around Labor Day.

This showed the Judge to be a very kind-hearted man, possessing a great deal of appreciation for the quality of baseball. He observed his actions were deemed a bit inopportune. Undue attention at a time a team is putting on a concerted drive rarely fails to bring about a let-down that usually is disastrous.

Back in 1928, the late William Wrigley, sensing a pennant early in September, staged something of a victory dinner and toasted his Cubs from one end of Michigan Boulevard to the other. For this oversight Wrigley had to wait until 1929 before Joe McCarthy was able to deliver him his flag.

But to get back to the pilots supposed to be on the anxious seat.

In Pittsburgh it is no secret that only a thin thread is holding George Gibson at the helm. The feeling there still persists that the Pirates had better get rid of him. The National League, and when such a feeling get abroad only one man pops out.

True, it may not exactly have been Gibson's fault that his reputed outfield of outfielders, consisting of the two Waners and Lindstrom, hit only .369 during the first two months of the race. Later Paul Waner and Lindy did considerably better. But it came too late and other things went wrong.

However, all this may be fair enough at that. When stars hit .369 and win pennants their manager is called the wonder-man. Why not let him be called something else when they hit only .369?

Anyway, the report is out that Pie Traynor can have the Pirates job if he wants it, or it may even go to Lindstrom, the erstwhile temperamental Giant if the Pirates owners can convince themselves that the young hunk has finally attained the proper age. A bright boy is Lindy. Almost too bright to be taking orders from anybody in baseball. He'll be a manager sooner or later, and perhaps the success of the twenty-six-year-old Joe Cronin may give him case additional weight with the Pittsburgh owners.

Philadelphia and Cincinnati also are slated for changes. Burt Shotton still has two more years to go on a contract. But the Phils were unimpressed by a disappointment this year, and the report is that Burt is to be paid off in full and somebody else given a trial. A rather costly experiment to find out whether the fault lay with the Phils or the manager.

MERALOMAS IN FINALS

Defeat V.A.C. 12 to 3 in Deciding Game of Canadian Football Play-off

Niblo Stars For Winners; Meralomas Will Now Oppose New Westminster

Vancouver, Oct. 10.—A keen struggle climaxed with a fumble by Louis Chodat as V.A.C. made a final desperate effort to score to-day had given Meralomas the right to meet New Westminster for the provincial Canadian rugby football championship. The Kitsilano squad turned back the Vancouver Athletic Club bid for victory 12 to 3 yesterday. Westminster trimmed Victoria.

It was a close, hard-fought contest until the final frame began, when the game for Meralomas. Niblo grabbed the ball. Chodat fumbled and raced forty-five yards for the winners' second touchdown.

Stewart drew first blood for Vacs with a punt to the deadline. Deadly tackling by the orange and black team held the Vacs in check thereafter and the Meraloma line held against their dreaded steam-roller attack.

When Stewart's kick for Vacs in the second frame slipped off the side of his boot it landed the sphere in the arms of Bob Ellis, who wriggled through a maze of opponents to register a touch, which went unconverted. Niblo added a deadline in short order after an aerial attack put the winners in position and made the count 6 to 1.

MISS CHANCES Vacs pressed hard in the third session and were rewarded with a brace of rouges. Niblo was downed twice by Vacs. Three times the losers had a shot at the goal, but they could not register a major score.

They lost another golden opportunity as the final frame began, when they held the ball on the Meraloma eight-yard line. Stewart weaved his way out of the danger zone and another aerial assault soon put Vacs back on the defensive. Niblo made 7 to 3 with another deadline and then came the break in the dying moments of the game which enabled Meralomas to add another touch.

LARGE CROWD AT THRILLING TILT

Victoria Team Combines Fast Breaking Attack With Stone-wall Defence

Unleashing a fast breaking attack that the visitors were unable to combat, Victoria's Coast League all-star football team opened its series of intercity engagements yesterday afternoon at the Athletic Park, with a brilliant 2 to 0 victory over the strong St. Andrews' eleven of Vancouver. An important factor in the victory was the stone-wall defence of the local club. The entire Victoria team from Goalie Louis De Costa out turned in a wonderful performance, and the 2,500 fans showed their appreciation of the team's fine showing by their enthusiastic applause. For an early season fixture the game produced cleverly executed plays at lightning speed. The Victoria goals were scored by Harry Youson and Noel Morgan, Victoria led, 1 to 0, at half-time.

Victoria fielded a young team and they made full use of their superior speed. Time after time the local forwards broke away on fast passing offensive plays that left the visiting half-backs and backs flat-footed. The locals set a killing pace from the start to finish and literally ran the St. Andrews' team off their feet. The local halves and backs adopted the same tactics and their speed and quick thinking broke up the St. Andrews' attacks. Not once did the Victoria team permit the St. Andrews' to settle down and get their deadly short passing game into action. The match, played on a fast, dry pitch and with a light ball, suited the Victoria team to perfection.

BOTTLE UP ROTHWEILER Fritz Rothweiler, dynamic soccer threat of the Saints, was bottled up completely. In previous games, both here and on the mainland, this stocky, clever forward has always been a thorn in the side of Victoria. He was bottled up yesterday he was watched at all times and failed to get away. He tried to rush Goalie De Costa on a number of occasions but Freddie Gibbons and Joe Watt, the local backs, gave the custodian plenty of protection. Rothweiler, who started at centre-forward, finally moved over to left wing and kick with the centre forwards bearing down on him. The Saints were forced to take advantage. ## Gangster Slain In Chicago Street

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Gus Winkler, a gangster, was shot and killed in a street in Chicago today.

Three killers motored down a north side street in an old green truck and Winkler stropped up to the door. The truck slowed down. Guns were poked out and a blast of buckshot poured into Winkler's back. He fell, and the shotguns roared again. Sixty-five wounds had been torn into his body. He lived just forty minutes.

Taken to a hospital, he steadfastly refused to admit his identity. A police sergeant identified him.

He died before police could question him about a $250,000 Chicago mail robbery, as the result of which Edgar Lebensberger, café owner, recently committed suicide.

Lebensberger and Winkler were neighbors on fashionable Lake Shore Drive, where both maintained palatial apartments. One, an associate of the notorious "Killer Fred" Burke, now in the Michigan penitentiary, Winkler figured prominently in returning $2,000,000 taken as loot by robbers from a bank at Lincoln, Neb.

He recently had been acquitted on a vagrancy charge here.

New Canadians Are Pledged to Empire

PIONEERING COUNTRY

"Traveling through the length and breadth of Canada one is impressed by the greatness of its natural resources, the huge area of vacant lands and the immense work that still remains to be done in pioneering, developing and populating the country," Count Ignatieff said. "One is impressed by the extent of social, government and transportation services which have been provided, and the comparative luxury of even small town life, and by contrast one notices the sparse and straggling land settlement scattered over a large area. One is led to realize that Canada's basic wealth lies in her land resources which are as yet unfully utilized. Of a total acreage adaptable to agriculture, estimated at 360,000,000 acres, only some 55,000,000 are described as improved and 58,000,000 are under crop."

"Hence it is rather surprising to find the average Canadian settled down comfortably in the big centres of population evincing very little interest in pioneering—especially is it striking about the young generation. The Canadian undergraduate to-day is absorbed by the consideration of economic and social systems and problems mainly pertaining to the over-populated and fully grown countries of Europe, whereas the problem and Canada's problem is primarily that of growth and development, because Canada is still essentially a pioneering country."

IMPORTANCE OF POPULATION

"But natural resources in themselves do not represent wealth. They can be turned into wealth only by a population sufficiently large and sufficiently united by common ideals, principles and objectives; a vigorous population which will co-operate harmoniously in developing these resources and building up the country. Therefore, the problem of population and the composition of that population is one of the most vital ones to Canada. On this score people have often said. Therefore we must keep the country British and it was a mistake to have ever let in all these foreigners. People who take this attitude often go further and antagonize that great proportion of the population of the Dominion known as French-Canadians who were here before the British."

"Then there is a problem of another nature. Largely due to the artificial prosperity of war Canada spent considerably more money than she could afford, and built up services far in excess of the requirements of her small population; that is, the same services could take care of a population much larger and a large population would help to carry the burden of these expenditures better. So sooner or later the very delicate problem of immigration will again become important, and the people who want to keep the country British will suggest moving thousands of British families to Canada."

BRITISH LAND SETTLERS

"Some years ago a prominent Englishman after a visit to the Peace River country, made a statement which brought down on his head the wrath of the whole Canadian press. In effect his remarks were that the Peace district had not yet reached a level of civilization such that it would be a suitable location for the settlement of British families. When he was pressed for a more specific explanation he said, 'Well, for one thing they haven't got any 'pubs' up there and an Englishman must have his 'pub.'"

"I know rural England fairly well as we farmed there after the war and I like it very much indeed, and I also have seen something of farming and frontier life in Canada, and I am sure a great deal of truth is hidden in this Englishman's words. You simply can't take thousands of Britishers from the beautiful and peaceful surroundings of rural England, miners from the hills of Wales and the unemployed from the great cities of Lancashire and Yorkshire, brought up on the dole, and dump them on the Canadian prairies or the northern backwoods and expect them to be happy. One in a hundred might succeed. Even if colonization is organized much better than ever it was before, there is some unavoidable hardship which must accompany a land pioneering in the climate and conditions which obtain in Canada. Pioneering in the northwest is even not the same as it was in Southern Ontario and parts of British Columbia. To have people succeed at this life you must have them first of all be devoted to the soil, to really like farming better than anything else and be used to a rigorous climate, privation and hard work, and the vast majority of Britishers suitable for immigration would not have these qualifications."

"Look at what happened so often in the west, and I saw happen up in the Peace country, where the original settler was often Anglo-Saxon. He was only too glad to sell out to the newcomer and move to the town on the railroad to go into business. He preferred the endowment of townships; he is not devoted to the soil; he does not give you a stable agricultural population in the condition of western Canada, and that is one of Canada's greatest needs."

"This is why I do believe the new Canadian from certain parts of Europe who has his background and tradition in the land; who is used to a more or less similar climate and environment has played and must continue to play an important part in the development of the land resources of Canada."

AGRICULTURAL POPULATION

"Where the British settler might have a more promising future is in the more settled parts of the country. The bulk of the agricultural land in Canada which is already settled could probably accommodate a much larger rural population than it does at present. Of the 163,000,000 acres taken by only 58,000,000 as we have seen are under crop. If I may venture an opinion which will find support among agricultural men of greater experience in the west, that is, the bulk of Canadian farmers are 'land poor,' that is, they have far more land than they can cultivate to best advantage. It is here that immigrants from Britain might find land under conditions which would lead to successful settlement. But with regard to developing some of the remaining 200,000,000 acres of agricultural land, much of which of course is not immediately suitable for settlement, Canada will probably need to look to new Canadians of non-British origin and the problem largely will resolve itself into assimilating these people—bringing them into line with Canadian ideals and principles. In any case that is still the problem with a large percentage of Canada's European population."

"One of the big objections we hear against the new Canadians, in these days especially, is that so many are not of the British stock. But on the contrary, form the bulk of the troublesome element known as 'Reds.' There are several explanations for this. One is that Canadian people have inclined to be over sympathetic with rebels, especially rebels against forms of government they did not like. Many such rebels were allowed to come to Canada and a good many of these are simply restless by disposition ready to make trouble wherever they are and under whatever government they may happen to be."

WANT SOVIET REGIME

"After the war considerable trouble developed in Finland with the communist element. It was put down drastically by a white government. Thousands of Finns emigrated. When I was traveling through northern Ontario I heard constant references to 'Red Finns' who had communist clubs, and who were doing propaganda and plotting the establishment of a Soviet regime in Canada. These were probably the same Finns."

"During the revolution of 1905 in Russia peasants, in some districts especially in the Ukraine, burned and sacked estates of the nobles. The revolution was put down and thousands of Ukrainians came to Canada. On my very first railway construction job in northern Ontario practically all the laborers on my section were Ukrainians, and some of them had been peasants who lived not twenty miles from where we had an estate, and where I was born. A lot of these fellows, even before the depression, inclined to be 'Red' in spite of the fact that most of them were making good money—as much as $1,200 clear a piece in one summer's work."

"One should be very careful in selecting immigrants from the malcontents of any country. Another reason why some new Canadians have related assimilation and have joined the ranks of extreme radicals can be traced to some of the methods of colonization in the past. Altogether too optimistic a picture was often given to prospective settlers which led to extreme disappointment. I have heard that complaint time and time again from British and foreign immigrants alike. Canada does not need that kind of advertising. One Ukrainian who came out as a boy with his parents and has since been through university, and is a loyal Canadian and a prominent citizen among his own people now, made no bones about the early colonization days to me. 'Our people were given glowing propaganda and then brought out and literally dumped on the land and no further interest was taken in them. All we saw of English Canadians was when tricky business men tried to profit by our ignorance and the politician came around to get our votes.'"

"Moreover, colonization under the unorganized, isolated homestead system led to many unnecessary hardships and disappointments and was not in keeping with progress along other lines. In the old days one had to tough it out on the homestead or die, but nowadays one could jump a freight into the nearest city, mine or construction camp and earn some kind of livelihood, and numbers of immigrants disappointed in land settlement conditions crowded to industrial jobs."

"This movement led to several negative results. The immigrants did not do what they were brought out to do—settle on the land. Instead they competed with Canadian industrial labor and flooded the labor market, which fact is responsible for the extreme opposition of Canadian labor to any talk of immigration. Moreover, it is these Europeans who moved to the cities and factories and many of whom are now unemployed who form the bulk of the 'Red' element."

"There is another major reason why some new Canadians have joined the ranks of dissatisfied radicals instead of becoming loyal citizens. Officially these people were welcomed to come to Canada, but when they got here they were painfully surprised to find that the average Canadians had no use for them and looked down on them and referred to them as 'bushwags' and 'daggers.' You would scarcely believe how much those fellows seethe with this attitude towards themselves and how deeply they resent it. 'Canadians have often complained to me that they do not get the better class of European in this country but I know of many cases of perfectly good intellectuals who just because they couldn't speak English fluently were classed with the bunnies. 'One such man whom I met this summer is a countryman of mine, a graduate of an European as well as a Russian university, who as a farm laborer until by accident he made contacts with a Canadian university and now he is one of the leading fish experts on the American continent. 'If you want new Canadians to co-operate loyally in building up this country and to enter into the spirit of the land you must needs show a more sympathetic understanding of them and meet them half way."

ASSIMILATION

"With respect to the actual process and methods of assimilation opinion is sharply divided. I think most people still believe that the quicker all these immigrants forget their old country ways and traditions and accept everything Canadian the better it would be. 'In order to achieve assimilation most rapidly people have advised that settlers should be mixed, and not allowed to settle in communities of one nationality. They claim that it was a great mistake to allow bloc settlement in the past. When people talk that way they forget two very important factors of human nature, one is loyalty and the other is national pride. If people were only more ready to concede to others the right of national pride which they like to claim for themselves then there would be more international tolerance and one of the major causes of war could be removed. 'It is perfectly natural for people to have a feeling of loyalty to one's nationality, religion and traditions and the person who abandons his loyalties easily, especially if it is for economic considerations, as a rule is not worth much to any country because he is just as likely to abandon his new allegiances when he thinks it profitable. 'In our own case we have a family tradition of service to Russia and her people, a tradition of statesmanship which goes back for generations. I have not the least intention of abandoning that tradition but will do my best to use it in serving Canada. 'Owing to the queer twist of human nature it is generally the worst features of the new environment that people absorb first and easiest. Superficial rapid assimilation has its definite negative aspects. The first things young new Canadians tend to pick up is self-assertion, checking their parents, breaking away from home, acquiring extravagant habits, a desire to live outside their income, not being content to stay on the land. The conception of freedom they tend to mistake for license. The result is they do not bring any useful contribution to Canada out of their own background, they

Ease Pain, Headache in Few Minutes

For Quick Relief Say ASPIRIN—When You Buy

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia... the fastest safe relief, it is said, yet discovered. Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which an Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking. The illustration of the Aspirin Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And thus is ready to go to work almost instantly. When you buy, thought be on guard against substitutes. To be sure you get ASPIRIN's quick relief, be sure the name Bayer in the form of a cross is on every tablet of Aspirin.

have broken with their own but they are not really good Canadians. MAKE GOOD CONTRIBUTIONS

"Some of the European stock which comes to this country brings some really valuable traits. Customs and talents of an artistic nature which would be a real contribution to the national life and should be preserved. The depression has proven that thrift, a certain amount of conservatism, careful and thorough methods of agriculture and a tendency towards mixed farming which distinguish European settlers are a distinct asset to Canadian agriculture. 'The department of colonization of the Canadian National Railways, under Dr. Black and Robert Englund, who have a great sympathetic understanding and knowledge of background of the European people in Canada, have been carrying out a most interesting experiment with new Canadian communities in the three prairie provinces, which is doing much to change the ideas of some of the leading citizens of the west with regard to community settlements. They are beginning to think they can be a real asset and not detrimental assimilation along the proper lines."

"We should remember that the British Empire is not a national, religious or racial entity. It is an association of free people bonded together by common ideals and principles. Wherein are there ideals different from those of other countries? What is the distinguishing hallmark of the British Empire? Is it the British constitution? Is it the principle of democracy? No, I think it goes deeper. It is something more fundamental. It is that the British people have evolved through the centuries a higher, a saner, a more dignified conception of human relations and made that the foundation of their Empire."

"It is perfectly natural for people to have a feeling of loyalty to one's nationality, religion and traditions and the person who abandons his loyalties easily, especially if it is for economic considerations, as a rule is not worth much to any country because he is just as likely to abandon his new allegiances when he thinks it profitable.
